

DUBLIN—JUNE 16.

POST ASSEMBLY.

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 15.

This day was entirely consumed in conversation relative to the resignation of Mr. Shaw's office of Alderman.

After various efforts the Sheriff and Commons being unable to obtain any satisfactory report of the correspondence with that Gentleman, save from his own letters, determined to act for themselves, independent of the Board, whom it was asserted had lapsed their right of placing another person in his situation, and therefore that right devolved, by Lucas's Act, upon the Sheriff and Commons.

Sir Edward Stanley proposed, before the House should exercise the power so fallen to them, that they should make a written request to the Alderman, that he would withdraw his resignation—His integrity, diligence, and upright conduct as a Magistrate, and as a member of this Corporation, especially of the committee of Finance, was a shield to the property of the City, and the rights of the Commons; it was therefore that a party joint at the Board most zealously wished him to abdicate.

Mr. Giffard coincided in opinion with the Hon. Knight. He believed Alderman Shaw a very honest Gentleman, a good Magistrate, and an excellent Banker, yet had he come down to the House in the joyful expectation of seeing him resign; for he considered it as an anomaly in politics, that a distinguished Member of the first Protestant Corporation in Ireland—a man that had received the single votes of five hundred and seventy Protestant voters, who sunk their second votes, rather than give eclat to the friends of Popery—one who had been a member of the society of the Alderman of Skinner's-alley, and as such, engaged to uphold the Glorious Memory, and Protestant Constitution, should desert that good cause, and support Popery. It was hard indeed for him to uphold his opposition to such a man—Property he might sacrifice, or even life—but Principle never; he must therefore declare the violence he did to his feelings, in letting this vote to recal Mr. Shaw pass without opposition—yet, this he would do on the present occasion, as it seemed the unanimous sense that the board of Aldermen would be a check to intrigue and profusion; a good Financier he might be, but from such a Parliamentary Representative—"Good Lord deliver us."

Sir Edward Stanley's Resolutions then passed unanimously, and the House refused any concurrence with the Aldermen on that business.

A long and desultory conversation took place relative to the late disagreement in the appointment of Sub-Sheriff, which was ended by Mr. Giffard assuring the House, that he would, at the next Quarterly Assembly, propose a measure which should prevent the recurrence of such scandalous transactions. He then moved the adjournment of the debate, sine die, which passed unanimously.

It was found, that the intention of addressing his Imperial Majesty the Emperor of Russia, and his Majesty the King of Prussia, came too late, as before the necessary steps could be taken, those illustrious persons would have left England.

A letter from the Recorder was received, in which he expressed his willingness that the deduction recommended by the Finance Committee, to be made from all salaries, should extend to his. This offer of the Recorder excited much satisfaction, and was accepted of. It was then moved and agreed to, that the letter of the Recorder should be sent to Alderman Shaw, to shew him that the measure proposed by the Finance Committee would be rigidly acted upon. A notice having been alluded to, to inquire into the misunderstanding relative to the Sheriff's Elect, Mr. Smith took an opportunity of contradicting a report that he intended to resign, on the contrary he expressed his determination to fill the office; much discussion and altercation ensued, which was concluded by Mr. Giffard, who moved that the question should be adjourned sine die, and which was carried.

This day, on the motion of Mr. Wallace, grounded upon the affidavit of Mr. Plunkett, a Conditional Order for an Information, was granted against Mr. George Archer, by the Court of King's Bench. A motion for a Criminal Information against Mr. Alderman Archer, was refused.

£10,000, the balance that the Stock Exchange have in hands, arising out of the late fraud (Lord Cochrane and others), are to be given in use to charitable purposes.

We are happy to announce the arrival of the homeward bound West India fleet, consisting of upwards of five hundred vessels—fourteen sail arrived this day in our harbour.

Several mercantile failures have taken place in this City since Saturday last—many of which involve Houses through the country in afflicting difficulties. It is said that the King of Prussia will be married before he leaves London, to a branch of the Brunswick Family.

The Earl and Countess of Lifford

Wree, on the north-western frontier, for field service, under the command of Major-General Dyson Marshall.

We observe from the Amsterdam papers, that an English company of actors are at present performing some of our most popular pieces at the German Theatre in that city. Among other names, we notice those of Messrs. Jones and Penley, who call themselves "of the Theatres Royal of Windsor & London." We also observe, that the Directors of the Dutch Theatre announce to the good people of Amsterdam, "that they have made an engagement with Messrs. Astley, Parker, and Davis, Directors of the Theatre Royal, Covent-garden; and of the Royal Amphitheatre, London, who are to get up some of the most popular English melodramas, in which they will introduce about twenty of their principal performers, together with their excellently trained horses, for the amusement of the public.

According to private letters from Hanover, the dykes in the county of Harburg, and in the neighbourhood of the duchy of Luneburg, have been destroyed, and the lands inundated. The full extent of the damage is not known; but it is supposed to be considerable.

The German papers speak with the utmost confidence of the intended marriage of the Duke of Cumberland with the Princess Frederica, sister of the late Queen of Prussia, and widow of the Prince of Solms Braunfels. The Duke arrived at Berlin from Strelitz on the 24th ult.

The French garrison of Hamburg consisted of about 12,000 men, and that of Magdeburg, including the sick, of from 15 to 20,000 men. Among the latter were 1000 Neapolitans and 5000 Dutch, who of course were to proceed to their respective countries. On being liberated, some disputes, it is said, took place between the Neapolitans & French, respecting the tyranny exercised by Bonaparte over Italy, which was followed by upwards of 40 duels, when four French and nine Neapolitan Officers lost their lives.

The French have issued orders, making even more difficult than before the obtaining passports;—all strangers quitting Paris are enjoined to provide themselves with passports properly verified at the Chancery of the Foreign Office, otherwise they may be stopped at the frontier and detained until the passport be sent to Paris for examination, for which two or three days are necessary.

The Archduchess Maria Louisa arrived on the 21st ult. at the Imperial Chateau of Schoenbrunn, and was met at a short distance by the Empress.—The Austrian Journals, and even the Court Gazette no longer prefix the Imperial title to her name.

The number of Bonaparte's Senators who have been excluded from the list of Louis XVIII. amounts to 58; of these 23 are foreigners, and the remaining 35 are understood to have been personally obnoxious to the Bourbons. Those who sat upon the trial of Louis XVI. and who had any share in the detestable murder of the Duke d'Enghien, are, of course, excluded.

On the 8th of May, a brig arrived at Civita Vecchia, from the Isle of Elba—On the ship's papers were inscribed—"The Emperor Napoleon, Sovereign of the Isle of Elba, &c." The master reported that Bonaparte had already given orders for the erection of an arsenal, an hospital, and other public works.

Bonaparte's repudiated wife Josephine, left, according to the Paris papers, personal property to a great amount. It consisted principally of antiquities, paintings, sculptures, and other rare and valuable designs of works.

Ten thousand English cavalry were expected at Paris on Monday last, from the South of France, to embark at Cherbourg, Boulogne, &c. on their return to England.

The Grand Review of the brigade of Foot Guards, the Guards (Blue), and several other corps of infantry and infantry is to take place to-morrow.—A 4th regiment is ordered up from Colchester, to the Stafford Militia, to take the London duty, in the absence of the Guards.

This morning, the whole of the Queen's Bays, Woodbridge, with the exception of the three companies that form part of the Guard of Honor at St. James's, marched along the New-road, for Hounslow Works.

The embarkation of the Russian troops at Cherbourg for England, some hundreds of their horses were sold, and purchased by the French Government.

Cardinal arrived in town on Saturday morning, accompanied with an important Mission from his Holiness to the Court of London.

A contract for the Loan entered into this morning, has given genuine satisfaction to the contractors and their Friends, as may easily be supposed when it is that during the whole of the day it has borne, a premium of between five and seven per cent.

Annuities closed at 69 3/4th, and Consols account at 72. The latter rose to 72 about

An outrage of a serious nature occurred on the 9th instant, near Ballycubane, in this Co. Anthony Nix, a sub-constable, went with assistants, and under the warrant of Vere Hunt, Esq. of Clorane, a Magistrate of this County, to apprehend some persons against whom informations were lodged, when the Constable and his party were attacked by a number of fellows armed with different weapons, who murdered John Shearin, of Ballina, and wounded others desperately that were assisting to execute the warrant.
