 of her age, Mrs. Major Stoney, of Grayfort, co.
 Tipperary, highly esteemed, and deservedly lamented by all those who were acquainted with her true character; being many years a martyr to delicate health, she appeared perhaps, to the stranger as suffering under apathy and inertness; yet possessed the acutest penetration and nicest judgment; warm and sincere in her attachments, she never professed a regard that did not appear in her actions; the poor in general found her a humane and charitable friend; and many, in particular, who were relieved by her generous assistance, and silent liberality, will have to regret her loss to the latest period of their lives;—having discharged the important duties of wife and mother, in the tenderest and most affectionate manner, she died as she lived, calmly & quietly, with the utmost resignation to the Divine will.—
