v. Walker—Mr. Twiss moved for a new trial se. It was an action against the defendant ing the Copyright of Moore's Irish Melodies. al it was proved that Mr. Moore had verbally d his right to Mr. Power, of Dublin; and er, of Dublin, by a verbal arrangement, had th the plaintiff that he should have the sole elling the Irish Melodies in England. The was non-suited at the trial, on the ground that assignment would not pass the Copyright writing. Mr. Twiss now moved for a new he ground that a verbal assignment was suffi-he Court was of a contrary opinion, and re-rule.

on the body of a man named Hall, who was found murdered at Boulincly, near Killenaule, when after the examination of several witnesses, a verdict was found of "wilful murder against James Whelan, of Boulincly."

On Friday night last, an armed party came to the house of a respectable farmer, names Hayes, who lives near the bridge of Ardmayle, and knocking at the door, required in a friendly manner that he should come out. On his opening the door, one of the villains immediately fired a gun at him, the contents of which entered a little above the hip and lodged in his back—Some of the slugs have been extracted by Surgeon Hemphill, and the poor man is still in a dangerous state.

Tralee, June 21—It is stated, with what degree of truth we cannot say, that the illustrious Visitors in the British Capital, the Russian and Prussian Monarchs, have signified their intention of visiting the Lakes of Kilarney early in the ensuing month, previous to their return to their respective kingdoms—it is probable, in case they should do so, that this town may be honored with their presence.
