in perfect health; after walking in the streets some time, he went into a tavern, and called for a tumbler of punch, of which he was partaking, in the company of some young persons, in very good spirits, when it was perceived his countenance underwent a sudden change, and his eyes became fix; he gave a slight moan, and immediately the vital spark became extinct.—At Castletine, co. Clare, the seat of James Butler, Esq. on Thursday morning, aged 74 years, Edward Fitz Gerald, Esq for many years Town-major of this City, and formerly Major in the 57th regt. in which he was wounded severely, at Bunker's Hill, and other engagements, in America; possessed of an amiable and kind disposition, Major Fitz Gerald was much beloved and respected, by every individual who had the pleasure of his acquaintance, and his death is, therefore, a source of much affliction.—On Thursday, at his seat Quinvine, Co. Clare, very deservedly lamented,
