

it is even reported, that a plan was concerted to off by open force—it is somewhat singular, that the Jacobins who are supposed to have attempted his the court of his prison is crowded with gens-d' only whilst he is taking his usual exercise, but he is retired to his chamber; the entrances are also guarded by mounted gen-d'armes.

hal Ney will be deprived of his rank in the same Moncey. Several French Officers continue to be every day. It excited some alarm at first from the n of their being arrested for political offences; but of their being arrested and sent to the prisons of their obstinacy in remaining in Paris contrary to the the French Minister at War.

is the distress of the French Officers who have been that a proposal is said to have been made by them upon the inhabitants where they were ordered to the proposal was of course refused by the French nt. It is creditable, however, to the French mili those who have means contributes to the relief of grades. Without this, I understand, hundreds of have perished."

ra from Nismes which had been for some time sa the most deplorable agitations have again disturbed lity. The 15th announced melancholy scenes; as from Bonillargues and the neighbouring places ed to the gates of the town to second the factious. tants were insulted, menacing and ferocious cries about their houses.

16th these symptoms of insurrection became still ing. At last, in the night of the 15th, the explo- dreadful. A certain Tressailon commanded the Blood flowed in many houses in the city. Mr. ther of the Colonel of that name, a respectable old having defended himself for above an hour, was dered. The next day the assassins divided the ir plunder. Several houses had been demolished; imms had been sacrificed. However, the armed end to these disorders. M de Rochemont, at it, distinguished himself by his zeal.

on was taken just as he had fired on the Comman- place, and conducted under an escort to Montpe brie or four of his principal confidants.

8th tranquillity was restored to the town, and it that it would be preserved.
