subsequently to Dublin. These marauders, who amounted to about fifteen persons in number, fired regularly in volleys, and by word of command, like so many soldiers, and it has been sworn that six and twenty shots, at least, were fired at the Coach. Just as the Coach passed the obstruction, the firing from the fields totally ceased, by which it is presumed their ammunition must have been expended; the Coach was detained at this spot a full half hour. Too much praise cannot be given to the brave Coachman and Guards, who conducted the Coach thus safely with its property and passengers to town after being in such imminent danger.

The Proprietors of the Coach have great merit for the laudable attention they pay to the selection of men of courage and conduct.

The most active exertions are making for the detection of the villains, who recently attacked the Banis-killen Mail Coach, by the Gentlemen of the County Meath, and their vigilance and public spirit promise to complete this important object. One of the persons suspected of being concerned has been apprehended and committed to the goal of Trim. He is an inhabitant of the town of Navas, and on searching his house a quantity of arms was discovered, which are supposed, from many marks of recent use, to have been employed on the occasion. These circumstances, it is hoped, may lead to the development of the whole plot, and the conviction of the principal offenders.—Enniskillen Paper.

Major Douglas, who unfortunately lost his life in the melancholy shipwreck at Framore, was of a most respectable Irish family, and had a handsome estate. He was cousin to Lord Cloncurry, and nephew to Mrs. Fortescue.

The seven seamen, saved from the wrecks of the Seahorse and Appollonia, have received from the Mayor of Cork, £18 17s. 6d. being the amount of a collection made for their relief. The Mayor and those who joined him in this generous interposition, are entitled to the public gratitude, as well as to that of the sufferers.

The death of Viscount Fitzwilliam (an Irish Peer) was on Monday night a subject of conversation in the Houses of Parliament.

The London Morning Chronicle contradicts the statement of the death of the Earl of Carlisle.

There was seized in the month of June last, in passing from one merchant's stock in Leith to another, a puncheon of foreign rum, altho' accompanied with a legal excise permit. It appeared in evidence, that the two officers who made the seizure were of opinion that it was mixed with British spirits, owing to its being reduced, and contained in a puncheon which when taken out of bond, some time previous, had contained rum twenty one per cent over hydrometer proof, and of which rum they held the original sample. The person from whose stock it was sent, appeared in court, and contended, that the rum being contained in a cask which he had taken out of bond some time previous, was no proof at all of the rum now contained in it being adulterated, and proved that he had given regular notice for the reduction of the rum taken out of bond—that the overproof had actually been placed to the credit of his stock in the excise books—that it had been turned over into a stock cask amongst other rum—consequently the original sample of the rum, formerly contained in said puncheon, could be no evidence whatever against him; and further, that the rum sent out of his stock was of legal strength; that he had ample credit and decrease in stock for same; and that under all these circumstances, there were no grounds whatever for such seizure. The judges having maturely considered the case, were of opinion, that as the rum taken out of bond had been mixed with other rum, and regular notice given for its being reduced, and that as the rum in question was of legal strength, and that there was ample credit and decrease in stock for the same, that they could see there were no reasonable grounds whatever for the supposition of the officers; and therefore ordered that the said puncheon of rum should be restored.

Lord Wm. Beauclerk filed a bill in the Court of Chancery against the Duchess of St. Alban's, with the intention of depriving her of the guardianship of the infant Duke, and obtaining the office for himself. By a recent decree of that court, her Grace is appointed sole guardian to her son.

We hear that some of the inhabitants of St. Paul's Covent Garden, intend to establish a bank in the parish, wherein the industrious may deposit their savings to improve at compound interest, with the liberty of drawing them at any time so improved, as may be required for their future health or advancement in life.—Times.

It seems Lord Liverpool offered himself in opposition to the Duke of Sussex, as a candidate for the presidency of the society of arts, vacant by the death of the Duke of Norfolk. His success is best learned from the ballot, which took place on Friday—in pursuit of a Requisition the High Sheriff of the County Galway, has called a Meeting of the Nobility and Gentry to be holden in the County Court House, Galway, on Monday the 19th inst. to take into consideration the propriety of presenting a congratulatory Address to his Royal Highness the Prince Regent, on the late Peace.

So greatly depressed are the farmers in the neighbourhood of Portsmouth, that, in the small village of Hambledon alone, eighty families of men discharged from husbandry work are daily subsisted by Poor Rates.

The Farmers' Meeting at the Star Inn in Lowes, to consider of the propriety of addressing Parliament on the present depressed state of Agriculture and the extreme hardships which they in consequence laboured under, was respectably and numerously attended. A Petition to the Commons House, praying relief, was unanimously resolved upon.

The house of Roscoe Clarke and Roscoe, at Liverpool, failed, it is reported, for £500,000. An extent from the Crown has been sent down to secure what money was paid into the bank on account of the Crown.

It is stated that Kotzebue, the dramatist, has died at Konigsburg.

That most earnest petitions be presented to the House of Lords and Commons, respecting their attention to the agricultural distress of the United Kingdom.

That we conceive a full and immediate supply of Butter from all foreign competition, is necessary to our prosperity.

That whilst we rely most confidently on the Imperial Parliament, we do not relax in our individual efforts, to Landlords an enlightened liberality, an industrious perseverance which, though they cannot remedy the distress, they cannot remedy the distress.

That our petitions be entrusted to the Hon. WYNDHAM O'CALL, Esq.

That a Memorial be transmitted to the King, praying his Excellency to take into consideration, the establishment of a Free Boat, between Killaloe & Shannon, rendering productive to the public—the penitence upon the inland trade of Ireland a secure and expeditious communication St. George's Channel, and the Atlantic Ocean.
