Longford since our last meeting. We sincerely congratulate the county on its adherence to those legal and tranquil habits which have so long and highly upheld its character—and that we trust in the good sense of its inhabitants, to prevent the necessity of our again assembling. Nevertheless, we pledge ourselves promptly to attend to any call from any of our fellow magistrates, and to afford every possible support to the peaceable and industrious, whilst we endeavour that those who may disregard the protection, shall be made to feel the coercion of the laws."

On Friday an action was tried in the Court of Common Pleas, London, for defamation, in which Mr. Wedderburn Webster was plaintiff, and the proprietor of the St. James's Chronicle, defendant. The action was grounded upon some paragraphs published in the paper, in which it was stated, that the Duke of Wellington and Lady Webster, the wife of the plaintiff, had been engaged in a criminal love affair.—The Jury gave the plaintiff £2000 damages.

Capt. Harrower, who was tried for Bigamy and remanded to Newgate, (as stated in a former publication) has been, on his second examination found Guilty. The verdict of the Jury, when pronounced, excited a very general sensation of disapprobation, as the whole Court appeared much interested for him.

Few criminal trials have been attended with circumstances of so strange a nature, as that which occupied the attention of the Court of Assize at Paris, on the 12th inst. Louis Leon, 27 years of age, formerly a carabineer, residing in Rue Moutetard, had lived with a woman, Gaudret, as her husband.—He had no employment, and they would have been both in a state of indigence, if the woman had not received presents from an old man, with the knowledge of Leon. This woman tired of supporting the younger of her lovers, gave him notice in the month of Sept. last, that if, at the expiration of 15 days, he did not obtain the situation he sought for, he must quit her house. Leon, to all appearance, received the declaration coldly, but took a desperate resolution. On the 12th of Oct. he rose at six in the morning, leaving the woman in bed, took a hammer and gave her a violent blow on the temple. Soon after, apprehending that she might recover and alarm the neighbourhood, he completed his crime by strangling his victim. He then took away all the valuable effects, locked the door, and went to his parents at Lagny, where he remained till the following day. The jury found him guilty, and he was condemned to the punishment of death. He heard his sentence with the utmost tranquillity.

FAUX PAS IN HIGH LIFE.—We are sorry to have to present our readers with another instance of those numerous infidelities which have of late so much disgusted the public. On Friday last eloped from her friends in the neighbourhood of Palace yard, Mrs. L—ch, a lady much admired in the circles of fashion. The particulars of the seduction, which we understand to have been of the most artful kind, as the lady was peculiarly decent and correct in her deportment, have not yet come to our knowledge, but the flirtation which led to it is supposed to have begun as far back as the year 1809 at the time of the proceeding against the Commander in Chief, and it is probable that some indiscretions at that period, encouraged those farther pursuits which at last terminated in her ruin. The lady, as we are informed, is some what past the prime of life, is in person rather genteel than handsome, and her manners rather imitative of what is sometimes thought good breeding, than really characteristic of that class to which she by birth does not belong. It is thought indeed that fondness for the society of her betters has been one of the causes which had led to this unhappy catastrophe. It was supposed at first she had taken the road to Ireland.—It is, however, now ascertained, that the place of her present retreat is the Duchy of Cornwall. We believe that we are authorised to add, that the friends of the lady though justly irritated at what is past, are nevertheless still willing to receive her with kindness, provided she returns forthwith, and if they can be assured that no greater indiscretion has yet taken place.—Morning Chron

MATRIMONIAL FRACAS.—A matrimonial separation in high life, at least for the present, has, we hear, taken place, in consequence of one of those domestic fracas which will sometimes take place in the "best regulated families." The happy pair have scarcely passed and the lady has recently blessed her Lord with an infant daughter. His Lordship in a poetical flight of fancy, is said to have pretty broadly intimated that her ladyship has his free consent to leave the house, and return to her relatives.—The report says, the Lady soon after did, taking with her, in a post chaise, the child, and its nurse, to the great astonishment of his Lordship.

"Twelve waning moons in bliss supreme,"

It is said, as from good authority, that a tradesman, who lately went off from a sea-port in Dorsetshire with money and effects to the supposed amount of £3000 has been arrested by a legal process at New York in America, (where he is now a prisoner) and the effects attached for the benefit of his creditors. This circumstance proves that persons departing to America, for the purpose of defrauding their creditors, are no more protected by the laws of that country than they would be if they remained in England.—Times.

A very lively professional lady, has just made a hop, step, and jump off with a noble Lord.

"MITCHELSTOWN, FEB 14.—Since my last I have learned the following particulars:—I omitted to inform you that the name of the farmer was Chamberlaine; his young son; a man of the name of Bronogue, his eldest son and daughter with two more of that name; a man of the name of Nunan, an only son; a young woman of the name of Cavanagh; two young sisters of the name of Clancy; and two more females of the name of Mahony, one of whom was to be married on the Sunday following, were burned to ashes. Several beggars, who generally attend country weddings, were also burned.

"I have just heard that four persons who were injured by the fire, have died in consequence. I understand that there are no hopes of the recovery of four more. A poor female fiddler, who was blind, lost her life; her little daughter, who was an attendant on her, made her escape, but was much injured. From the appearance of the ruins and the bones found, it is generally conjectured, that from 25 to 30, have perished, besides those who have died since. It is impossible to describe the distraction of the parents and relatives in endeavouring to discover some remnant of the remains of the unfortunate sufferers."

On the morning of Wednesday se'night, about eight o'clock as Mr. Fowler, of Newport, Isle of Wight, was walking over his farm he found in a field adjoining St. George's Down, the dead body of Lieut. E. Webb, of the 5th bat. 60th regt. He is supposed to have shot himself, as a discharged pistol was in his hand. The ball entered his mouth.

DIED,

Last night, at the Island Gate, sincerely and deservedly lamented by every person who knew her, Mrs. Hammond, wife to John Hammond, Esq. Surveyor of Excise in this city. She was an affectionate wife and a tender parent, and has left a fond Husband and an amiable Family long to deplore her loss.
