Our Papers say, that the King of Wurtemberg has addressed a new Rescript to the States-General—His Majesty has caused an overture to the Nobles, requiring them to maintain relations as subjects in correspondence of oaths of fidelity, and the law of God will be considered disobedient and void on all the deliberations of the Diet, and constitution.

On page we commenced the admirable modern Cicero, Charles Phillips, Esq., of Galway, in the case of Mr. Corkell—In our fourth we concluded Mr. North, who is daily rising in our estimation.

TYTHES.

At a Meeting on Monday last, the petitioners drew up the Petition to the subject of Tythes, consisted of John Massy, Edward Croker, Wm. Rice and George Evans Bruce, presented the following, which was approved:—
able the Knights, Citizens, and in Parliament assembled.

The petitioners of the Freeholders of the County of Limerick, respectfully sheweth, that when petitioners approach the bar of your Majesty with the deepest sense of obligation to the legislature for the liberal encouragement to the agricultural of Ireland, petitioners however apprehend that the effect of this encouragement may not be the modification and reform of those taxes which absorb so great a proportion of the soil.

These, your petitioners consider objectionable, as a tax on capital, and as a bar to the vigorous prosecution of the tythe.

The tythe is unequal in its pressure, and vexatious in its collection, by the exemption of grass on pasturage, and consequently the quantity of tillage ground, and the impoverished peasantry to the temptations of a total want of employment. The importance of these observations to your honorable house, when it is out of 30,397 families comprehended in the census of the county of Limerick returned as engaged in agricultural

The age of Ireland is almost exclusively the working farmers, who are unable to provide for a double order of the system falls with accumulated weight, and are least competent to sustain it. Your petitioners consider the tax only levied throughout this county to be a source of great hardship to be a principal argument by which the law and social order pervert the public mind.

Your petitioners, viewing with the utmost solicitude the church establishment, and the subjects inconsistent with its digni-

Guards, from this city.

The Harmony, Mickle, arrived on Tuesday evening in our harbour, direct from Cadiz. She reports that so great is the demand for grain at that place, particularly wheat, that every cargo is instantly purchased from the vessel, and no part of it stored. Potatoes were selling at the rate of 3 hard dollars per cwt. about 2s. per stone.

DIED.

On Sunday, in Cork, at the early age of 25, of a fever contracted in the course of his attendance as Physician to the Dispensary, Doctor Gilbert Newsom, of that city.

On the 8th inst at his father's Grand Parade, Cork, Lieut. Joseph Gibson, of the 68th regiment. This gallant young Officer joined the British Army before the battle of Vittoria, and partook of all the glory of the remainder of the campaign. His death proceeded from a rapid decline brought on by excessive fatigue while he was with the Army, and which has terminated a short but most honourable career.

At Carrigafoyle Castle, Co. Kerry, Christopher Gaff, Esq., eldest son of Christopher Gaff, Esq. of said place.

BATTLE OF WATERLOO.

MR COLBURN has the honor to acquaint the Army, its Connections, and the Public in general, that he is preparing for Publication, an Historical Account of the BATTLE of WATERLOO, written from the first Authority by W. MUDFORD, Esq. accompanied by a Series of splendidly coloured Engravings, Plans, &c. from Drawings taken on the spot, by JAS. ROUSE, Esq.

In this important undertaking no exertion will be spared to produce a memorial of the exploits of our gallant countrymen truly worthy of them; to transmit to posterity a record, which may be consulted with conscious exultation—whom the future historian, who shall recount these immortal deeds, may examine with confidence—and which the living, who partook of all the toils, the dangers, and the glories of them, may turn to the authentic monument of their own exploits.

The Plates will not merely illustrate the field of battle, but all the intermediate country from Brussels to Charleroi, proceeding in regular succession: so that the reader will, as it were, actually walk over the ground which our army trod, from the moment it quitted Brussels till the Battle of Waterloo was fought. They will form in a manner one vast picture, so concatenated throughout, that what appears in perspective in the first Plate will be represented in the foreground of the second, and so through the whole series.

To military men, and especially those who were in the battle, these Graphic Illustrations must be peculiarly valuable and interesting, as they will be enabled to ascertain almost the very spots where themselves stood—where their brave comrades were killed or wounded—where they sustained the shock of the enemy—where they repelled his onset—and where at last they so gloriously conquered.

The Work will be elegantly printed in imperial Quarto, and will consist of four parts, each containing about seventy pages of letter-press, and six plates, forming together one handsome Volume.

Part I. was published on the 1st of April, price 21 11s. 6d. and the whole will be completed in the course of May.

Orders received by the Publisher Mr. COLBURN, Conduit Street, London, and by every bookseller in the Kingdom.

London, April 20, 1816.
