

that Murphy had been formerly employed by Mr. Brown as an agent, in the collection of his debts—that Mr. Brown had discharged him, and that he was indebted to Murphy in the sum of £225, for which he obtained a warrant signed by the Coroner of the county, and went, assisted by a brother, and others to execute it—He met Mr. Brown in the street of Glin, towards the close of the evening, and succeeded in making his captives—He said he determined to bring him to Limerick, but it was proved, he was taking him in the direction of Tarbert, when he was met by the Knight of Glin, who, on learning the nature of the arrest, discharged the debt, and desired that Murphy and his party might be gone. This Murphy refused to do, unless the Knight of Glin would afford him magisterial protection, as he feared an attack from the Glin Boys—The Knight said he was not bound to do so, farther than his own gate; from which he had not proceeded many paces when he was attacked by a number of armed men, by whom he was knocked down, and received several severe wounds.—His evidence appeared very contradictory on the whole, for he swore at one time, that the Knight of Glin was one of those who struck him, and after, that he endeavoured to protect him—He said, that when he had been knocked down a man leaned over him, and took a sum of money out of his pocket—He was then brought back to Glin House where his wounds were dressed, and received every assistance which it was possible to have afforded him—He said, that to the Knight of Glin he denied the fact of the robbery, and he was under an apprehension that he would have been murdered had he admitted it, although a military party were then at the door, which the Knight had sent for—The charge against Mr. Brown he did not attempt to substantiate, and was withdrawn—That against Mr. O'Leary occupied a little time, and the learned Judge said, that the Jury must acquit him as there was nothing positive sworn to—The informations were therefore, in point of fact, solely directed against the Knight of Glin—On his cross-examination, he contradicted his testimony in many points, and admitted that he had another object in view, namely, that he intended, if he succeeded in the matter in question, to bring an action against the Knight of Glin. Mr. Lloyd, as counsel for the defendant, addressed the jury at some length, and commented on the atrocity of the attack made on the honor and character of his client, universally respected as a Magistrate and a Gentleman, who until this occurrence, had escaped even the attempt of malevolence; and put it to the jury, by their verdict, to wipe off the false, foul and diabolical version, which the prosecutor had, in the wickedness of his heart, endeavoured to attach to the name of a man who had deserved better at his hands. The learned counsel observed, that he (Murphy,) had been ill-treated, of which his person gave evidence, this he should allow, and could sympathise with him, and go as far as any other man to bring the perpetrators to justice; but why in mercy's name make the Knight of Glin mark to indemonstrate him for the injury he had received—because he could not name those who actually did attack him, and if he did, they were not able to satisfy him in the way he sought—A pecuniary remuneration. He asked no more from the Jury but merely what their oaths and consciences would allow them to give, a full and honorable acquittal of his client, and thereby establish the triumph of innocence, the justice of the law, and strike dumb the tongue of calumny, which would slander the reputation of honor.

Scott, of Knopogue, Co. Clare, of a son and heir—In street, the Lady of John Gushen, Esq. of a daughter—In Dublin, the Lady of Crosbie Moore, Esq. of a daughter.—At Kiltush, the Lady of Francis Spaight, Esq. of a son and heir.

MARRIED.

At Desart, Colonel James Campbell, 49th regt. to the Right Hon. Lady Dorothea L. Cuffe, daughter to the late and sister to the present Earl of Desart—Major Whetham, late of 40th regt. to the widow of R. Bailey, Esq.—In London, Lieut. Colonel Kelly, 11th dragoons, to the widow Nichols—J. C. Cottingham, Esq. of Summerhill, county Cavan, to Hannah, daughter of the Rev. Christopher Robinson, of Woodlawn, in said county—In Dublin, Thomas H. Quinn, of Carrick Aona, Waterford, Esq. to Eliza, daughter of W. H. Hamilton, Esq. of Peter street—Vivian Boyle, Esq. to Sophia, eldest daughter of the late David Courtney, of Mespil Grove, Esq.—The Rev. J. G. Thomas, rector of Bodiny, Sussex, and eldest son of Sir John Thomas, Bart. to Elizabeth Ann, widow of the late Lieutenant Colonel Gray, of the 30th regt. and eldest daughter of the Rev. J. Vignales, of Cornaner, county Westmeath—Mr. William Brown, of Kilmore, to Miss Jane Orr Cleland, of Creeveycunanan—their united ages make somewhat less than thirty, neither of the happy pair having attained the fiftieth year!

DIED.

At his Lordship's house, in Richmond Barracks, near Dublin, after a few hours illness, Ellen, Lady Dunboyne, wife of the Right Hon. Lord Dunboyne, second cousin to the Earls of Westmeath and Clare, and to the Countess Glengall and Lady Dunally, &c. &c. She was an affectionate wife, a tender mother, and a warm friend—she has left a large young family, with a disconsolate husband, and numerous relatives and friends, to mourn her loss—a loss irreparable—At Loughres, aged 93, Hubert Dolphin, Esq. of Bushfield, county Galway—At Cheltenham, Mrs. Eyre, of Eyre court Castle, in said county—In London, the Countess of Uxbridge, aged 75—she was daughter of the late Rev. Arthur Champagne, Dean of Clonmorris, in Ireland, and mother of the Marquis Anglesea—by her death a pension of £1000 falls to the public.—In London, in the 25th year of his age, Thomas Rawlins, Esq. son of the late Wm. Rawlins, Esq. of Rutland square, and for a long time a Director of the Bank of Ireland—A melancholy and fatal accident happened on the 27th Sept. last, in the Bay of Bengal, to Francis, the second son of Major General Wilder, M. P. In descending from the Astell, East Indiaman, into a barge alongside, his foot slipped, he missed his hold, and fell between the ship and craft, and although every exertion was made to save him (particularly by one of the quarter masters, who immediately jumped overboard at the risk of his own life,) the rapidity of the current was such, that he sunk and was seen no more. He thus perished in the 14th year of his age—In Merionethshire, at the astonishing age of 110 years, Edmond Morgan, being, we believe, the oldest inhabitant of Wales. He retained his faculties to the hour of his death. His funeral was attended by his three sons, one daughter, twenty three grandchildren, ten great grandchildren, and five great great grandchildren, and upwards of seven hundred inhabitants of that and the adjoining parishes—In London Mrs. Anne Green, widow of the late Major General Green, of the Bengal artillery—In London, Napier Christie Burton, Esq. second son of General Burton—In Dungarvan, Mrs. Kennedy, wife of James Kennedy, Esq. M. D.—At Rockfield, near Wexford, Miss Arabella Nuon, fifth daughter of Joshua Nunn, of St. Margarets, Esq.—In Dublin, Mr. Edward Molloy, printer—At Athenry, aged 96, Thomas Taylor, Esq. Portrieve of that town, and formerly Major in the Galway regt.—In Ennis, Mrs. Butler, relict of the late Wm. Butler, Esq.—On Saturday morning, in Thomond Gate the Rev. Mr. Fitzgibbon, P. P. of St. Munchin's—He bore a tedious illness with that meekness and fortitude becoming a christian—On the 27th Dec. last at Norfolk, Virginia, Mrs. Freeman, wife of Captain William Freeman, formerly of the town of Bellast—Yesterday, sincerely regretted, Simon Kent, Esq. of this city—At Ennis, William Daxon, of Fountain, Esq.—On Thursday last, in this city, after a severe illness, Mrs. Macnamara, wife of Mr. Daniel Macnamara, formerly of Dublin—whose amiable qualities, and anxious discharge of the duties of wife and mother, commanded the admiration and esteem of her acquaintance—This morning, in Nicholas street, Mr. Wm. Frawley, deservedly lamented by his friends and acquaintance.

DUBLIN MARKET, MARCH 22—The season is so favourable for farming purposes, that the Markets are now much neglected, and the supplies continue to decline. The arrival, however, of eighteen thousand barrels of American Flour, has had a considerable effect in reducing the prices of that article, which has fallen from 7s. to 8s. per cask. Good Wheat maintains its price, and inferior samples are also in demand. Oats and Barley support former quotations. Oatmeal is dull, and looking down.

MARTIN HONAN.

It having been submitted by the Meeting of Creditors of Meade & Feunell to the consideration of the Committee appointed by them and annexed to their Report, whether the offer of composition laid before this Meeting, on the part of O'Brien, Meade and Dublin, was such as may be acceded to by the creditors of the House.

We have examined the Statement laid before with the previous Statement laid by Mr. Arthur, we are fully of opinion that Seven Shillings in the Pound, is a full and adequate composition on respective Debts due of them, and we recommend same to the adoption of the creditors, more than prosecution of the Statute.
