 such cases, but lest an objection should be raised that that Act did not apply to the value of houses in St. Michael's Parish or Clare-street, but merely to an acreable tax, a case was laid before the Attorney-General for his opinion. to which he replied, that the inhabitants of those places are as much alike liable to be assessed for the amount of the Executions, as the inhabitants of any other part of the County of the City of Limerick; all of whom are to contribute according to the relative value of their respective tenements, and not according to the acreable extent of the Parish or Parishes in which they may reside.

[In our next we shall publish the case and opinion at full length.]
