DIED—On Tuesday morning, at his house in Grenville-street, in the 77th year of his age, Colonel Luttrell, Governor of His Majesty's 9th Regiment of Dragoons. He was one that all classes of our fellow-citizens will unite in regretting us in the loss of a character [illegible] and as highly esteemed amongst us. Born and educated in England, and strongly attached to his own country, his talents and noble character, yet of manners so unassuming and retiring, as never were, we believe, to have given offence to the feelings, or even opinions of those amongst whom he resided; while his mild and [illegible] example, through a long life, of uprightness, honor and punctuality in all his transactions with others; his steady observance of public and private benevolence, and his correct conduct in the various relations of life, were calculated to secure the esteem and respect of all. He bore a long and severe illness of bodily suffering, with daily increasing weakness and resignation, and remained in full possession of his faculties to the last. It must be peculiarly interesting to the Christian reader to learn, that at that hour which is short to us and to "the wheel from the cistern," this revered and distinguished character, disclaiming all self-righteous hopes, declared his entire reliance and the surest and placid confidence with which he met death, from dependance only upon the merits of his Saviour—who "died that we might live, was a guarantee for all whom "marked us not to be barren or unfruitful in good works"—In Tipperary, on Sunday last, Mr. Martin [illegible] aged 61 years. He was a fond husband, an affectionate father, and an honest man—Mrs. Raymond, relict of the late [illegible], and an honest man—Mrs. Raymond, relict of the late George Raymond, of Listry, in the Co. Peere Williams.—In York-street, Dublin, Mrs. M'Donnell, relict of the late Randal M'Donnell, Esq.—Suddenly, Miss [illegible], daughter of the late Rev. Archdeacon Oliver.—At Gosport, John Charles Cowell, Esq. late Lieut.-Colonel Royal Scots.—In Jersey, Francis Harmer, Esq. late of Clonee, Co. Monaghan.—On Wednesday evening, Mr. George [illegible], of a severe illness, Daniel O'Connor.—In Waterford, the Rev. Thomas Wyse, Roman Catholic Dean of that diocese, and President of Catholic College.—In said City, John Edwards, Esq. Lieutenant Royal Navy.—On Tuesday, at Ballinglanna, in this County, the wife of Mr. Wm. M'Carthy.—At Glenville-Hill, Co. Meath, Mrs. Bowring, wife of the Rev. Doctor Bowring.—In Galway, suddenly, William Persse, Esq. half-pay Captain 20th Regiment.—At Dundalk, Cornet Lennox Tweedale, youngest son of Major-General Tweedale, King's Dragoon Guards.—At South Cerney, Gloucestershire, the Rev. Isaac Edwards.—On Thursday, at Hospital, in the Co. Mr. Thomas Maher, a respectable farmer.—At Tralee, universally, at an advanced age, on Saturday morning, the Rev. Robert Stephens, Vicar of the Parishes of Clonga, Kingsalebeg, Templeomalbert, and Kiccolcon, in the County of Waterford. By his death the above four Parishes will become vacant, the presentation of which belongs to his Grace the Duke of Devonshire, who intends to [illegible] and to give but one Parish to each Clergyman; and will not proceed a person to any living in his gift who will not [illegible] in the Parish.—At Bath, Charles Worthington, Esq.—Lady Cope, relict of Sir Jonathan Cope, Bart.—The wife of Edward Kershaw, Esq.
