The Archbishop of Cashel was to have arrived on Saturday, for London.

Mr. Neill will not visit Cork this season.—The demands are, it seems, too exorbitant for bringing her to that City.

A considerable quantity of rain fell on Saturday, and it appears to be pretty general through the County.

It was accompanied by wind which prevented the harbour as to unmoor several merchant vessels, and cutters; but the waves beat so forcibly as to tear down the quay, and the spray was dashed high as the second-story of the houses.

The quantity of rain that fell was about a quarter—a greater depth than the rain that fell since the 30th of August.

At 2 o'clock on Sunday night, there were several flashes of lightning in the west.

On Friday night last, three fine breeding horses of Mr. James Dundon, were taken away, and the flesh of a hind and was sliced from the bones, the remainder of the carcasses were scattered about; the heads were cut from them and cut in a brutal manner.

Chandlers would do well to be circum-spect in their purchases of raw tallow from country dealers, they well know how to detect matters of
