It is with extreme concern we state, that on Monday night, between the hours of eight and nine o'clock, the Rev. John Mulqueen, Parish Priest of Ballinacorney, in this County, was murdered on the high road between Kilmallock and Bruff, by five men. The particulars which have come to our knowledge are, that this worthy and respectable Clergyman was on his return home with two attendants after attending at the bedside of a sick prisoner; having met five armed men on the way whom he knew and had passed him by, he said to his attendants "do you proceed onwards, while I remonstrate with those men on the impropriety of such conduct." He went back, and after a lapse of a few minutes, a shot was fired which induced the two men to return, when the melancholy spectacle of his murdered body, on the road, presented itself to them.

Further Particulars.—An inquisition was taken yesterday in the town of Bruff, on the body, by Charles Bennett and James Bennett, Esqrs. Coroners, at which several Magistrates attended. The Jury returned a verdict of "Willful Murder." It appeared in evidence that Mr. Mulqueen was returning from discharging some of his clerical duties, when he was stopped by a respectable farmer, named Clifford, who warned him not to proceed on the road, as he had just met five armed men, who threatened his life if he did not pass them without observation—to this entreaty Mr. Mulqueen replied, that he would endeavour to point out to them their impropriety, and whilst in this benevolent act he was deprived of life by them—three slugs had entered his body. A very liberal reward is entered into for the apprehension of the bloodthirsty villains, and we hope to have the satisfaction of announcing their detection.

Rewards amounting to £500 are offered for the perpetrators of the murders of Henry St. George, Esq. and James Townsend, in the County of Tipperary, common, last week.

COUNTY LIMERICK

SATURDAY

[In our second Edition on Saturday of this Meeting.]

At one o'clock, a great number of Gentlemen assembled on the bench of the Crown Court—It having being the Sheriff, that the Grand Jury Room was a convenient place for discussion, the Meeting held there, and the Gentlemen assembled.

At half past one, the High Sheriff took the Chair, and after reading the Resolutions of the meeting, he was addressed.

Colonel Monwell, who lamented the calling together the great body of the Gentlemen present could not forget the various parts of it—the breaking up of the armed parties, demanding and taking of the arms, and the blowing of horns, which had grown into such an intemperance of extraordinary measures.

The Magistrates have not sufficient means for the reduction of the army necessary and the subduing of those enormities upon our own exertions. Heard, and he was rather inclined to believe that parts of the County were not yet permitted to run without being not been tainted would very soon present Police of the County would meet those outrages, and it was, that such strong and due measures place the County in its wonted order. For that purpose, he begged the Gentlemen for their consideration, that a similar mode had been adopted in the County of Tipperary, which he learned it was so from Sir Edward Bouverie, which, upon the County at large, would be a great benefit to the people of the County—It would be well to enable the industrious Farmer to bear the toils and fatigues of his ploughed country, who were at all times in fear, as these attacks would not be the poor working classes that the Government paying on half the expense of the Poor Law Act into would not exceed at the utmost the amount of the Resolutions.

The Knight of Glin seconded.

On the High Sheriff reading the Resolutions, Colonel Burke rose and said, that the County were in a perfect state of peace, and why should they address themselves to the Gentlemen that it is in a most alarming situation, and rebellion, when the Gentlemen allowed that there are some parties who have been convicted, but not punished, and therefore not required of the law, by the introduction of the Resolutions. There are Gentlemen who have been 30, and 40 years—he had the honor to know those Gentlemen always lived in the Resolutions did not—he was of each year, and consequent state of the County as well as found at their posts. If the Gentlemen in the preservation of good order, and undertake that the Gentlemen be quiet while he is absent. He was stable, and assist in taking the true patriot would do so, and in that way there would be no means. He concluded by
