

James Daly, and proposed to be elected to
of the said Corporation.

In the General Election in 1818, the said Michael Bergast was put in nomination as a Candidate for the said town in Parliament, in opposition to Mr. Daly; and that the said fictitious and fraudulent o again brought forward and put upon Mr. Daly's poll by the aforesaid Mathew Thomas Smyth, Esq., and has ever since continued illegally to be Sheriff of that town; that after the teste of the poll issued for holding the said Election, a Cook was, with the privity of the said Mathew Smyth, and by the agency of the said James Daly, and the persons so, as aforesaid, disfranchised, who so, as aforesaid, rejected in that election, in consequence made by the Galway Act frequent, in the said book, which falsely purports to be record of original entry of all the transactions of election for the preceding forty years, notwithstanding the said book was the only record referred to him as to the rights of franchise during the late Election; that subsequently, Mr. Daly, being guilty of the said and other indirect and unscrupulous reflecting on the honour and justice of, withdrew his candidature from the contest; whereupon, who still had a large majority, was duly elected.

Subsequently, and at various times since the said 1818, the said James Daly, assisted by the Rev. Thomas Smith, has refused in open Court, styled as Mayor, and while the said Mathew Smyth acted as Sheriff, to swear to or admit several respectable Catholic freemen, who are freeholders of the said town, to swear to or admit several respectable Roman Catholic freemen, of whom have been no election whatever, if such persons demanded, as before-mentioned were not brought in, and if the undisputed freemen under the said who opposed their election to Town were not disengaged, and fraudulently deprived of their by the extrusive and corrupt conduct of the Daly, in order that he might be able to render useless the challenges of the fair and honest Electors which commenced, as before-mentioned, day of March, 1822, that when the said Michael Bergast was last proposed as a Candidate, as the said, the said James Daly, and others upon his half open-Court promise and engage to expend of money for the benefit, employment, and advantage of the Electors of the Town of Galway, in order to serve in Parliament for the said Town.

The Petitioner was put in nomination, the said James Daly, Mayor of the said Corporation, in a public Court, to the Electors, in open Court, before the said and declared that he had looked upon the election, and the Representation thereof in Parliament, private property, and that he would use and apply with a view to his own private interests;

James Daly did at the same time declare, that he offered to exchange certain offices belonging to the Corporation, and which offices are connected with the administration of public justice within the said town, to appoint persons to execute the said offices who at the said Election, in consideration of their services to the Petitioner; and also, in consideration of political support of the said persons, which offer, he agreed with one of the said, James Daly, the same to be able to produce; that the said Mathew Smyth, from the commencement of the cause, and proofs of his attachment, and falsehood himself of the said James Daly, and did before all, and said Election, not arbitrarily and illegally in respect of his office as Returning Officer, and did at irregularly, unjustly, and unlawfully interfere, influence and direct, and consult and impede, without any lawful cause, some, and corrupt Electors, who were ready to enter their votes for him, and did at the close of the second day of election had commenced, make a speech before the DEATH—At his house, in the Castle, on Tuesday, the 19th instant, William Ashton, sen. Esq. Panegyric is not always just, but language most full very short, indeed, in portraying the many virtues that adorned this truly excellent man. If a kind affectionate husband, a fond indulgent father, sincere friend, good neighbour, generous benefactor, cheerful and safe companion, pure principles, wished heart that knew no guile, true-stake an abomination on the heart and affections, long will be remembered and lamented by his family and friends; for ages truly to remember, and you must esteem him. His dissolution (though unexpected) was calm and resigned; the pillow of death was selected by the watchful and dutiful attention of his affectionate wife, and children, to whom he left a bright example of virtue and religion, and after bidding them a long and joyful farewell, with cheerfulness resigned his soul to his "God," in full assurance of a happy resurrection through the mediation of "Jesus," his hope and Saviour! That died the good Mr. Ashton, beloved and lamented, and by few words the writer of this, who knew him many years, and never knew a better man.—In Great Britain-street, Cork, Mrs. Daly, wife of Maurice Daly, Esq.—Caldwell Clark, Esq. of Derry.—At Donaghadee, the wife of Wm. Mr. B. was sitting near his wife's bed, and, observing some change in the countenance of the attendant, he asked if his wife were dead; being answered in the affirmative, he was instantly seized with a fit, and never spoke after.—In Carrickbar, Mr. Julian Connolly, schoolmaster.—In Dublin, Lieut.
