

whom I have the highest respect and esteem of most honorable principles, strict and unblemished conduct. Mr. Newenham, in a letter, assured me, that it was not, by any means, a business, and that the Loyal Address to his Majesty was perfectly inoffensive. On hearing of the resolution at the County of Dublin Meeting, and the innocent cause of giving rise to any such meeting, I respected the Editor of the Dublin Weekly Chronicle for his misrepresentation or calumny against me, and my papers to show the real cause of my meeting. To my great satisfaction and relief, the meeting was most numerously attended, and the Loyal Address to his Majesty was read with unanimity and cordiality. The motives I have for my determination never to interfere in political questions, I plead my excuse with the worthy and sensible gentlemen who attended the meeting. My unshaken fidelity to the King and our happy Constitution never doubted or called in question. I have the full assent and warmest approbation of the Loyal Address to his Majesty, as I am fully convinced, that it is conducive to the peace, happiness, and glory of the Empire, than unanimity, strict and steady attachment and love for our happy Constitution, the interests of the people, impressing strongly the principles of the Christian Religion, and the habits of temperance and honest industry. It has been my constant study to encourage these habits; and I have laboured at all times for the happiness and prosperity of the City of Dublin, by giving education among the poor, and, as far as I could reach, in supporting every useful institution, which I will continue to do to the utmost of my power.

I am your faithful humble Servant,
CHARLES TUOHY,
 Roman Catholic Bishop Limerick.
