ring, with a fine likeness of his Majesty, and a suitable inscription engraved thereon, and that his Majesty was pleased, in the most gracious manner, to put it on Sir Matthew's finger, as a mark of his feeling of consideration for the services rendered during his late dangerous illness, and which services, we are confident, are fully appreciated by the country. It was at the time acknowledged that his Majesty's valuable life was saved, under Providence, by the professional skill and active attentions of Sir Matthew.
