It gives us much pleasure to see a meeting advertised for the formation of a Society in Limerick, in aid of the Funds of the London Hibernian Society. We understand that this is an Institution which has strong claims on Ireland, having expended large sums collected in Britain for the Education of the Poor of this Country; and that its plans are liberal, economical, and efficient. The demands for new Schools are greater than their funds are able to support, we therefore trust that our good City will not be behind other towns, in liberally contributing to this great national undertaking. As a proof of the plan being suited to the state of Ireland, we give an extract from a work by a Roman Catholic Barrister, on the education of the Peasantry of this Country. After he has examined the merits of the different Societies in Ireland for the Education of the Poor, he says, "The London Hibernian Society has been fortunate in the adoption of a plan more suitable than any that has yet been tried to the circumstances of Ireland---they do not interfere with the religious profession of the people---the plan of teaching adopted by the Society is excellent, and their system of constant inspection and superintendance of their Schools insure their usefulness." We expect the information to be communicated to this Meeting by Robert Steven, Esq. of London, a Member of the London Hibernian School Society, will be very interesting.

On Saturday, one of Mr. Going's Police, of the name of John Gorman, stationed at Cahircoulish, having been handed a Magistrate's warrant for the apprehension of a person charged with some offence, proceeded with it to arrest the accused, who was at the time in a half-alley, within a short distance of his quarters. The Policeman having seen the person, acquainted him of his having a warrant for his arrest, and was answered, that a supersedeas had been issued by the same Magistrate who granted the warrant,

... dreadful Duel ... Lieutenant of the ... having some ... which were ... necessary ... on the occasion, but the nature of the wound rendered their exertions unavailing.--On Sunday morning, the unfortunate Gentleman was removed to his lodgings in Clare-street, where he died at eleven o'clock that night. Nothing could exceed the horror this transaction excited---the Coroners and all concerned about the premises took, and every person who could be instrumental in their detection, or in any way assist to bring the matter to light, were on the alert. On Monday morning, a most respectable Jury were summoned, and an inquest was held on the body by Alderman Watson, Ormsby, and Anthony, upon which some very important matters were elicited, and after an investigation of several hours, the following verdict was returned:--

"We find that the said Michael Kent was wilfully murdered by receiving a gun-shot wound in his head, on the morning of Sunday, the 5th of August, in the rere of Mrs. Ryan's concerns in St. Francis's Abbey, in the County of Limerick, of which he died same night at his residence in Clare-street, in the Liberties of said City; and that it appears to us that the shot was fired by one of three men, namely, Thomas Hefferman, Cornelius Dwyer, and Thomas Normoyle, then in the employment of Mrs. Ryan and her son, Martin Ryan, as watchmen, and for some days and nights previous."

Apprehension of the Murderers

On Monday evening, in consequence of information given by Mr. Mat. Kelly to Alderman Wilkinson, while the inquest was holding on the body of Mr. Kent, that Hefferman, one of the alleged murderers, was in or near Castle-Connell, the Alderman, who is a Magistrate for the County, immediately decided on accompanying Mr. Kelly, to where he was informed the murderer was. They took a chaise, and understanding that he was unarmed, and in a house friendly to his apprehension, they did not wait for any weapon, but started from Clare-street at the instant. On reaching the place, they learned that Hefferman left the house, but that he was to come to town after ten o'clock, for the purpose of getting money to enable him to leave the country, and that he was without arms. On the way to town they met Mr. James O'Dea, of Charlotte's-quay, Mr. William Carroll, of Broad-street, and Mr. Tinsley, High Constable; all of whom, with a promptitude that reflects on them the highest credit, resolved to co-operate with Alderman Wilkinson in his determination to wait at the upper bridge of the Canal, where Hefferman was to pass, according to the information they had received. The hour of ten arrived; the Alderman and his companions were every moment after on the look-out, until within a quarter of twelve o'clock, when they saw three men, all armed, slowly approach the bridge, on the north or Park side of the canal; as they got near, Alderman Wilkinson and his friends rushed suddenly on them, and Hefferman, who was in the front, attempting to escape, was seized by the Alderman, and in the act of presenting his gun, was knocked down by Mr. Tinsley; Mr. Carroll then secured Dwyer, who had a case of pistols, out of them at the moment presented at Alderman Wilkinson, but was knocked quickly out of his hand by Mr. Carroll; the third man (who is supposed to be Normoyle,) effected his escape. He was closely pursued by Mr. O'Dea, whose exertions all through were incessant. The conflict with Hefferman and Dwyer continued for some time, but the personal bravery and purpose of Alderman Wilkinson and his heroic companions prevailed. These two culprits were lodged in jail, and Hefferman has since confessed that the pistol that had been taken from him was that with which he shot Mr. Kent. It was a heroic achievement for these Gentlemen, without a single weapon of defence, to encounter three assasins, well armed, and resolved on death; in short, Alderman Wilkinson and his party are entitled to public gratitude; their conduct is an honor to Limerick.

To the Proprietors of the Limerick Chronicle.

Gentlemen.--Having seen some statements in your Paper of the 4th inst. purporting to be an account of the trials which took place between the Trustees of Lord Courtenay and Mr. Robert Carte and Denis O'Connor, I beg your insertion of the inclosed, to the truth of which I may pledge myself, from the minute investigation I made in Mr. Hewson's office. As an Officer of the Court where these trials took place, I was professionally employed, and trust I discharged my duty in a fair and becoming manner.

Your obedient servant,
Limerick,
Yesterday morning.
D. N. O'BRIAN.

The account of the terminations of the last Sessions of Rathkeale, which appeared in the Limerick Chronicle of the 4th instant, having received considerable attention, from the misrepresentation therein contained of two cases, by way of Experiment, (in both of which the Trustees of Lord Courtenay are stated to be Plaintiffs, and Robert Carte, Esq. Defendant,) requires some observation.

It has been somewhere observed, that "it is unlucky to stumble at the threshold." Reader, mark the commencement of the above account of an Ejectment, and when you are persuasively assured, without fear of contradiction, that Mr. Robert Carte was Defendant only in one Case, you can estimate, without hesitation, the veracity of the Reporter.

The article states that "In the year 1814, "Mr. Courtenay, Heir Apparent, and then Agent "to the Trustees of the Estates, was in the "country, and had full authority to grant Leases "on their behalf, and that he at that time "received and accepted a proposal from the "Defendant for twenty-two acres of land, near "Newcastle, and gave orders to have him put in "possession, upon which he made some considerable improvements, and continued a peaceable tenant to the present time, without the "perfecting of Leases, agreeable to the proposal." Now, I should think that Mr Courtenay was then in the country, but the full authority to grant Leases, and that he accepted a proposal for the Defendant to demise. It is admitted that the Defendant got into possession (under a parole agreement,) but no considerable improvements are pretended! Unless it can be made manifest that letting out a valuable meadow of seven or eight acres to poor labourers, at an enormous rent, for the culture of potatoes (two crops,) and then progressively reducing it to an out or barley field, constitutes an improvement! Certainly, the garden ditch on the side of the Western road has been faced with stone, and makes a pretty appearance, but this has been done by public presentment, and would almost lead one inclined to the ludicrous to say---

"Bob Carte, out of the great bounty,
"Built a wall at the expence of the County."

There is also a spring-well on the premises, of great utility to the inhabitants of Newcastle, round which a small stone-wall has been erected by the Defendant, for which he has been allowed a sum of about Eighteen Pounds sterling by the Trustees.

I come next, and with some reluctance, to what has been called the punctuality of the tenant; for in truth the difficulty of making rent in the present year is obvious. The Defendant (under his private agreement) was bound to pay £15 per year for the farm, and on the 25th day of March last there appeared, by the Castle Books, (the correctness of which has never been doubted) to be due for rent and arrears of rent the full sum of £115 6s. 3d. being over two and a half years rent, not one shilling of which has been yet discharged!!! Facts are stubborn things---the Defendant, Robert Carte, of Newcastle, in the County of Limerick, Esq. on the 25th day of March last, stood and still stands (by the Castle Books) indebted to the Trustees of my Lord Courtenay, in the full sum of £115 6s. 3d. for rent and arrears of rent of his impoverished holding: to which may be added (though without expectation of payment) the sum of £31 16 2½d. being the ballance due upon his promissory note, dated the 4th of May, 1808, and £75 10s. the amount of his second promissory note, dated the 24th of October, in said year, both passed for rent of two parts of the lands of Modelligs, to which he had been theretofore tenant on the Courtenay estate.

Now, if the words indulgence and oppression are not synonimous, how, under Heaven, can this little man complain? Or how can he forget that the statement and proof of these facts (which had no immediate bearing on a Question of Title,) were admitted on the trial for the sole purpose of preventing, if possible, his being lessened in the estimation of a crowded and respectable auditory?

It is now more than two years since he received intimation that his pretensions would be disputed, and he was soon after served with an Ejectment on the Title; yet he never produced any legal or equitable document by which his alleged right could be established---his ideal document being (according to the allegation of his excellent Agent, Mr. Fitz-Gerald,) in a remote part of England, that is to say, in Lincoln's-Inn, in the County of Middlesex.

It would be a gross injustice to the present Lead Agent, of the Courtenay Estates, not to notice and proclaim to the County at large, the motives which influenced him to bring the ejectment against Denis O'Connor, alluded to in the latter part of that notable publication which has elicited this comment. It appears that the tenement in question had been demised to one Michael O'Brien, in October, 1817, for a long term at the rent of £4 11s. per ann. who remained some years in possession thereof, and
