

be a warning; that Mr. James Curtin, got soldiers into his house lately, had the care, for he would not always have Mr. Curtin was lately attacked.) He "Big-head O'Brien, the farmer, was out of his farm, for a matter which forty-four years back, and that the eyes now took satisfaction." During this session, there were many soldiers passing, and witness continued attentive he said; prisoner then further observed, one should be allowed to hold more farm; to which witness said, that is legal, but not lawful; when prisoner said it is Captain Rock's orders. Prisoner, when interrogated why they (White-guards, "oh! it is better to shoot than flog or they never tell stories," and that Captain Rock was to have all his men in on the 17th of March; Lady Rock is now in this County, the Captain not being present himself. Witness further said that a man with a frize coat addressed the name of George, and offered him a £1 19s. 7d. not to prosecute prisoner; refused it, and consulted with Mr. Wilcocks, who desired him take the and go to Colonel Dick, and he advised Witness gave it to Mr. White, who took it to the Colonel; the Colonel desired to produce it in Court. Witness underwent a long cross-examination by Mr. Odell, but nothing was elicited from the direct testimony given. Mr. Allen, serjeant of the 42d, proved he was in prisoner and heard him express himself witness stated, and "that a general turn would take place with all from the age of 14 and you must stand off then serjeant," the prisoner. The pacific demeanour of the prisoner was, but it could not be cleared up satisfactorily what could have kept the prisoner out the of time he had been, so as to cover the prescribed by the Act; and that, though expressions were not under this statute, or applicable to the Court, yet they were indicative of a prisoner, and no recommendation as to the prisoner's being lawfully or laudably engaged was unanimously found Guilty. His Lordship sentenced the prisoner upon the nature of his defence, and in a strain of pointed irony ridiculed the declamation of the prisoner and the opinions of his Legislator, and sentenced him to be banished 7 years—where he will not be allowed to see either General or Lady Rock. His Lordship called up the soldier, and paid him a high compliment for his conduct on the 17th of March, and sent John Sheehy, of Ballingarry, for absence. John Hogan, John Shire, and George Pres- Ballingarry, were, after a long investigation. The only feature in this trial arose from the testimony of Lieut.

were sent off last night, to Cork, with a strong detachment of the 42d Highlanders, 3d Light Dragoons and Police. A large concourse of people were present to witness the scene, computed at least about 5000 persons. When the prisoners were taken through the streets, the air was rent with shrieks and sobs by their relatives.

Errata.—In the report of the trial of Thomas Driscoll, inserted in fourth page, for Mr. Odell, read—"Captain Smith, you have done my job completely,"—that spirited Magistrate having spoke as he felt as to the prisoner's character.

This day Serjeant Torrens arrived in town, and proceeded to the City Court to resume the Special Session under the Insurrection Act, and adjourned until two o'clock on Monday.
