DEATHS.

At the Custom house, on Thursday, aged ten months,
Jane Araminta, the infant daughter of the Rev. J. Beresford Johnston.

In Ennis, on the 21st inst. after a tedious illness, aged 63 years, Charles Mahon, Esq. Many deaths have occurred day after day, which deprived the poor of those persons whose hands were ever extended in supplying their wants, but never did the death of any individual come more forcibly against the poor—the room-keepers especially, than that of Mr. Mahon's, as he allowed many of them as much as paid their rents, and relieved them plentifully in other respects—in a word, he is a public loss. He held the situation of Barrister of the County Clare since 1793, and those persons whose law cases came before him, can best testify the fairness and impartiality of his decisions; in private life also, he was all that could be wished for. A settled gloom reigns throughout Ennis since this Gentleman's demise, which proves the estimation he was held in.

At Carrick-on-Suir, Joseph O'Donnell, Esq.
In Dublin, Lieut.-Colonel Cox, late of the 89th Foot.
At Hollyhill, Co. Cork, Charlotte, second daughter of Richard Long, Esq.
In Monaghan, Robert Montgomery, Esq. M. D.
At Burleigh-hill, near Curriekfergus, Geo. Burleigh, Esq.
At Belfast, Mr. James McConnell, merchant.
At his lodgings in Killarney, William Allen, Esq. a Gentleman who for many years filled a situation in the Revenue with honour and credit.

In Dublin, Mrs. Charlotte North.
At Lynn, Ann Miller, aged 106 years.
Mr. Roger Keane, of Bridge-street, Dublin.
The Rev. William Curwen, of Harrington.
In London, the wife of Mr. Samuel Tuodey.
In Chelsea, Mrs. Ana Cruger, relict of Colonel Cruger.
At Sevenoaks, Kent, J. P. Claridge, Esq.
John Addison, Esq. of Homerion.
In London, Lieut.-Colonel Brownrigg, eldest son of Sir
R. Brownrigg, Bart.
In Bath, the Rev. W. Haverfield.
On his journey to Bangalore, in the East Indies, Sir S.
Toller, Advocate General of Madras.
