

Counsellor Quin—Remembered the day he was murdered; he saw him going to the place he was alive and stretched on a bed; he was wounded on his back; a young gentleman into a car, on his back; witness was at the end.

O'Connell—Witness was not in Court at that trial. He acted a humane part at it.

Examined by Mr. Lloyd—was in possession, to examine Mr. Thomas Neill; heard he died; he had some slight wounds in his arms; the wounds were not so large; a slight wound in the back of his neck; a witness found it to be a great iron blunt weapon.

Examined by Mr. White—was committed; Dillane since showed blood there, he knew young Mr. Dillane the 1st or 2d of August. Cross-examined by Mr. Quin—witness asked Patrick Dillane; he asked him if he knew Patrick Dillane; he said "I knew Patrick Dillane."

O'Connell—The Insurrection at Donnybrook and Fitzmaurice were reputed to be a bad way to go to him by knowing either Dillane or Welsh; Welsh was a prisoner; they don't think that the army would speak to Dillane about it; he did say to Dillane he would be with him that he may defy every person who he adhered to the truth, and he attended Galvin's prosecution for taking a share in the process; he charged the jury in favor of Dillane to Newcastle to a boy named Dillane, and said that he also understood one of the prisoners.

O'Connell—The Insurrection at Donnybrook and Fitzmaurice were reputed to be a bad way to go to him by knowing either Dillane or Welsh; Welsh was a prisoner; they don't think that the army would speak to Dillane about it; he did say to Dillane he would be with him that he may defy every person who he adhered to the truth, and he attended Galvin's prosecution for taking a share in the process; he charged the jury in favor of Dillane to Newcastle to a boy named Dillane, and said that he also understood one of the prisoners.

O'Connell—The Insurrection at Donnybrook and Fitzmaurice were reputed to be a bad way to go to him by knowing either Dillane or Welsh; Welsh was a prisoner; they don't think that the army would speak to Dillane about it; he did say to Dillane he would be with him that he may defy every person who he adhered to the truth, and he attended Galvin's prosecution for taking a share in the process; he charged the jury in favor of Dillane to Newcastle to a boy named Dillane, and said that he also understood one of the prisoners.

O'Connell—The Insurrection at Donnybrook and Fitzmaurice were reputed to be a bad way to go to him by knowing either Dillane or Welsh; Welsh was a prisoner; they don't think that the army would speak to Dillane about it; he did say to Dillane he would be with him that he may defy every person who he adhered to the truth, and he attended Galvin's prosecution for taking a share in the process; he charged the jury in favor of Dillane to Newcastle to a boy named Dillane, and said that he also understood one of the prisoners.

O'Connell—The Insurrection at Donnybrook and Fitzmaurice were reputed to be a bad way to go to him by knowing either Dillane or Welsh; Welsh was a prisoner; they don't think that the army would speak to Dillane about it; he did say to Dillane he would be with him that he may defy every person who he adhered to the truth, and he attended Galvin's prosecution for taking a share in the process; he charged the jury in favor of Dillane to Newcastle to a boy named Dillane, and said that he also understood one of the prisoners.

O'Connell—The Insurrection at Donnybrook and Fitzmaurice were reputed to be a bad way to go to him by knowing either Dillane or Welsh; Welsh was a prisoner; they don't think that the army would speak to Dillane about it; he did say to Dillane he would be with him that he may defy every person who he adhered to the truth, and he attended Galvin's prosecution for taking a share in the process; he charged the jury in favor of Dillane to Newcastle to a boy named Dillane, and said that he also understood one of the prisoners.

O'Connell—The Insurrection at Donnybrook and Fitzmaurice were reputed to be a bad way to go to him by knowing either Dillane or Welsh; Welsh was a prisoner; they don't think that the army would speak to Dillane about it; he did say to Dillane he would be with him that he may defy every person who he adhered to the truth, and he attended Galvin's prosecution for taking a share in the process; he charged the jury in favor of Dillane to Newcastle to a boy named Dillane, and said that he also understood one of the prisoners.

O'Connell—The Insurrection at Donnybrook and Fitzmaurice were reputed to be a bad way to go to him by knowing either Dillane or Welsh; Welsh was a prisoner; they don't think that the army would speak to Dillane about it; he did say to Dillane he would be with him that he may defy every person who he adhered to the truth, and he attended Galvin's prosecution for taking a share in the process; he charged the jury in favor of Dillane to Newcastle to a boy named Dillane, and said that he also understood one of the prisoners.

O'Connell—The Insurrection at Donnybrook and Fitzmaurice were reputed to be a bad way to go to him by knowing either Dillane or Welsh; Welsh was a prisoner; they don't think that the army would speak to Dillane about it; he did say to Dillane he would be with him that he may defy every person who he adhered to the truth, and he attended Galvin's prosecution for taking a share in the process; he charged the jury in favor of Dillane to Newcastle to a boy named Dillane, and said that he also understood one of the prisoners.

O'Connell—The Insurrection at Donnybrook and Fitzmaurice were reputed to be a bad way to go to him by knowing either Dillane or Welsh; Welsh was a prisoner; they don't think that the army would speak to Dillane about it; he did say to Dillane he would be with him that he may defy every person who he adhered to the truth, and he attended Galvin's prosecution for taking a share in the process; he charged the jury in favor of Dillane to Newcastle to a boy named Dillane, and said that he also understood one of the prisoners.

O'Connell—The Insurrection at Donnybrook and Fitzmaurice were reputed to be a bad way to go to him by knowing either Dillane or Welsh; Welsh was a prisoner; they don't think that the army would speak to Dillane about it; he did say to Dillane he would be with him that he may defy every person who he adhered to the truth, and he attended Galvin's prosecution for taking a share in the process; he charged the jury in favor of Dillane to Newcastle to a boy named Dillane, and said that he also understood one of the prisoners.

O'Connell—The Insurrection at Donnybrook and Fitzmaurice were reputed to be a bad way to go to him by knowing either Dillane or Welsh; Welsh was a prisoner; they don't think that the army would speak to Dillane about it; he did say to Dillane he would be with him that he may defy every person who he adhered to the truth, and he attended Galvin's prosecution for taking a share in the process; he charged the jury in favor of Dillane to Newcastle to a boy named Dillane, and said that he also understood one of the prisoners.

O'Connell—The Insurrection at Donnybrook and Fitzmaurice were reputed to be a bad way to go to him by knowing either Dillane or Welsh; Welsh was a prisoner; they don't think that the army would speak to Dillane about it; he did say to Dillane he would be with him that he may defy every person who he adhered to the truth, and he attended Galvin's prosecution for taking a share in the process; he charged the jury in favor of Dillane to Newcastle to a boy named Dillane, and said that he also understood one of the prisoners.

O'Connell—The Insurrection at Donnybrook and Fitzmaurice were reputed to be a bad way to go to him by knowing either Dillane or Welsh; Welsh was a prisoner; they don't think that the army would speak to Dillane about it; he did say to Dillane he would be with him that he may defy every person who he adhered to the truth, and he attended Galvin's prosecution for taking a share in the process; he charged the jury in favor of Dillane to Newcastle to a boy named Dillane, and said that he also understood one of the prisoners.

Mr. Edward Pennefather (who came specially) stated the Plaintiff's case, in a most luminous and eloquent manner—he spoke for three and a-half hours. The following witnesses were examined:—

Mr. Wall, Frederick Bevan, Attorney, Surgeons Hewson and Wilnot, Dublin, Richard Cooke, Dublin, Rev. Mr. Lee, William Kennelly, Mr. Serjeant Lloyd, James O'Connor, Lock-Smyth, Dublin, Doctor Harding, and William Henry Grady, Dublin, and Robert Newenham.

This closed the Plaintiff's case and the Court adjourned at six o'clock to this morning.

Mr. Holwell Walsh states the Defendant's case.

On Thursday last, John M'Donogh, aged 21, Thomas Neill, aged 24, and Thomas Gorman, aged 25, of the Commons of Rathkeale, James Browne, of Crough, aged 21, and James Cleary, of Nautenant, aged 30, were hanged at the New Drop of the County Jail, for the murder of the Shanagolden Post-boy. They all acknowledged the justice of their sentence, and implored the numerous concourse collected to see their disgraceful exit, to abstain from evil society and bad advice. After spending some time in prayer, they were all launched into eternity precisely at three o'clock. The executioner was unmasked. After hanging nearly an hour, their bodies were sent to the County Hospital for dissection.

Notwithstanding the audacious manner in which the four unfortunate wretches, who were convicted on Thursday, for the murder of Mr. Hoskins, received the awful sentence from the Learned Judge, it is a consolation to find, that immediately on retiring to their cells, they freely acknowledged the justice of their sentence. Laurence Welsh emphatically stated, that Dillane was the person who put him up to the murder, and that persons were in the Court when he was trying, that were concerned in the conspiracy against young Mr. Hoskins, who would yet be brought to justice, and added, "this is the truth, as I am a dying man."

The four murderers of Mr. Hoskins, and the seven men, for the abduction of Miss Gould, were apprehended and brought to justice by Thomas Phillips Vokes, Esq.—to whose active exertions, as a Magistrate, this County stands so peculiarly indebted.

Convictions at Waterford Assizes:—Mr. Barnaby Jackson, John Kirwan, and Eliza Russell, for assaulting a Sheriff's Bailiff, and rescuing goods, distrained.

John Spicer and Thomas Walsh, have been capitally convicted at Waterford Assizes, City Court, for robbery, but recommended to mercy. In the County Court, Edward and Margaret Halloran, and Margaret Hayes, for burglary and Robbery, have been found guilty.

On Saturday night, an armed party of five ruffians broke into the house of the Widow Miley, at Robertstown, near Shanagolden, in this County, and threatened her with destruction if she did not quit her abode. They also broke several windows in the village. The peasantry in this vicinity should recollect the number of their neighbours who have been hanged and transported, for illegal pursuits, within the last twelve months, and take example from their punishment.

Four sheep had their throats maliciously cut, at Donoman, in this County, on Wednesday night, the property of John White.

of Twenty Pounds, British, from the London Committee for Relief of Irish Distress, for the Kilmallock Committee begs to return sincere thanks.

The Rev. Mr. Murnane, P. P. of Kilmallock acknowledges, with sincere thanks, the remittance of £25, British, from the London Committee, to be disposed of in relieving the greatest distress in his Parish.

James M'Namara, Esq. of Ayle, has received £20 from the Mansion-House Committee of the poor of that place.

Particulars of the Sermon preached on Monday last by the Very Rev. Doctor O'Connell will appear in our next publication.

Jeffery Foot, Esq. Foreman of a Record has given Two Pounds to the House of Industry, Two Pounds to the Mendicity Association, and One Pound to a distressed Gentlewoman, in compliance with the wish of the party who succeeded.

The Treasurer of the Dispensary acknowledges the receipt of One Guinea, from Mr. Fitz-Gerald, Esq. which was collected by a Record Jury.

Yesterday, Alderman Watson received One Guinea, from William Fitz-Gerald, Esq. Patrick-street, Foreman of a City Record for the use of the 287 inmates in the House of Industry.

On Wednesday, a Deputation from the Jury of the County of Limerick unexpectedly visited the House of Industry, and after minutely inspecting the entire establishment, have reported as follows:—

"We having been deputed by the Jury, at the Summer Assizes, 1822, to enquire into the state of the House of Industry and Asylum, do find it in a state of perfect regularity and high order.

"JOHN S. BROWNE,
"EYRE EVANS,
"THOMAS LLOYD."

DR. O'SHAUGHNESSY'S CIRCULAR TO HIS CLERGY.

DEAR SIR—You will mention from your Altar, or next, that Dr. O'Shaughnessy, R. C. Bishop of Killaloe, requests that the Pastors of the distressed districts of this County, should, at their respective Chapels, excite their flock to unite with the Clergy in expressing their heartfelt and lasting gratitude, for the unexampled, necessary and relieving relief, administered to them, through the paternal benevolence of our beloved Sovereign, by the kind generosity of our benevolent benefactors, and fellow-subjects in England.

This work of mercy originated with our generous and passionate friends in England, by whose zeal and munificent sums were poured in on the London Tavern Committee of Management, by whose anxiety for our relief and the adoption of the most effectual and charitable means were adopted—Charity Sermons—Balls and Theatres—and having tried all other means, the collections from door to door were resorted to, with conspicuous success.

In the history of the world is there to be found any instance of such benevolent feelings as are now manifested towards us—by the illustrious English Protestants, in favour of the destitute Roman Catholics of Ireland.

As the apprehension of famine must be soon done away, and the prospect of an abundant harvest, this same Great Britain is turning its thoughts towards a supply of night clothing, for men, women and children, of our distressed peasantry.

Heavenly God! Can those wretched poor people