DEATHS.

Yesterday, at his house in Catherine-street, in this City, Rebecca, wife of Phillips Cosby Lovett, Esq. Inspector-General of Excise, after a long and painful illness, borne with the meek and pious resignation of a Christian, and the hope of a blessed resurrection to eternal life. To many natural good qualities, she added a refinement of manners almost peculiarly her own, and the most amiable disposition; and she discharged the relative duties of wife, mother, and friend, in so exemplary a manner, that her death is a source of poignant grief to her afflicted husband, her young children, an extensive circle of friends, and her very numerous and highly respectable family and connexions. Her remains are to be interred tomorrow, in her family vault, at the Cathedral.

In Park-street, London, on Thursday last, Luke White, Esq. M. P. for Leitrim. The death of this excellent man, must be universally felt throughout Ireland, with almost all parts of which he was generally connected by his extensive landed property. Those who were best acquainted with him declare, they never knew a man with a more benevolent heart, or a more liberal mind. Mr. White was in his usual health, and conversing with Mr. Marsden, formerly one of the Irish Under Secretaries, when he dropped down and expired.

 Yesterday, in Roche's-street, Mr. Mat. Casey, a young man much regretted.
