DEATHS.

On the 4th inst. at his residence at Rock-Mill-Lodge, County Cork, in the $4th year of his age, Richard Aldworth, Esq. sincerely regretted, beloved, and respected by all who knew bins, or could appreciate the warm interest be took in the welfare of the poor, either in quality of landlord, as connected with them, or in that of philanthropist where no such interested motive existed, he but their happiness always in view, alike on his pillow as in his chair, in his hour of yest as in his sesson of occupation; often would be awake th some churituble and huname plan, the result of the fre lous night's deliberation, and the evening of the day vitnessed its execution. No munever departed this life with a more crafted and reverential awe of the Supreme Being. or a mind more disposed to submit with resignation to his righteons dispensations - this was particularly displayed in his last illness. Mildness, gentleness, benevolence, and generosity were striking features in his character; but it is needless further to dilute on his many amiable qualities, they are written in the bearts of all those who enjoyed the pleasure of his society, or shared in his conversation.

In Cork, Martin Casey, Esq. Officer of Excise, and lately of this City.

At Richmond, Virginia, much regretted, Mr. Charles Purcell, late of this City, Watch-maker.

In Sackville-street, Dublin, William Dense, Esq. Member of the Royal College of Surgeons in Ireland, and son of the late eminent Surgeon of that name.

At Mount Erne, near Birr, of apoplexy, Thomas Woods, Esq.

At Tramore, Patrick Galwey, Esq. of Waterford.

At Boyle, Robert and Edward, only sons of Captain Farewell, Paymaster of the 19th Foot.

At Athlone, Frances, wife of William Commins, Esq. Deputy Inspector of Hospitals to the Forces.

Esq. Surgeon General.

In College-green, Dublin, Mrs. North. Richard Weld, Esq. of Lodge, near Bagenalstown.

In Castlebar, the widow of Orme Lundy.

George Musgrave, Esq. formerly M. P. for Carlisle.
In Dublin, Hopera, wife of Mr. Patrick Reagh, grocer.

At the British Museum, the Rev. Thomas Maurice.

In Bombay, James, third son of Mr. John Morgan, of Newry.

On Sunday evening last, at his house on the Blackrock road, Cork, in the 73d year of his age, Mr. James Magrat! He was for about half a century Clerk to the Parish of the Holy Trinity.
