DEATHS.

This morning, in Thomas street, deservedly lamented, Mrs.
Weish, wife of Mr. Michael Weish; she closed a life spent in the exercise of every moral and religious virtue, by sur-during a tedious illness with meekness and resignation, and submitting to the will of heaven, with an humble hope of her spirit being removed to a better world; she has left an afflicted husband and six young children to deplore her death.

Yesterday of fever contracted in the exercise of his profession, to the inexpressible grief of his family and friends, John Joseph Locke, Apothecary and Druggist—His short career in life was eminently conspicuous for many most amiable qualities: unaffected piety, strict integrity, and charity the most pure and disinterested, invariably marked his course, and rendered him an ornament to the society in which he moved—His moral and religious conduct was most exemplary in every point of view—The respectable profession in which he was rapidly advancing exhibited to him the brightest prospects, which have been now unhappily blasted by too close an attention to its duties—The anxious solicitude evinced during his illness, and the general regret felt at his decease, are unequivocal testimonies of his superior worth, and of the estimation in which he was held by all classes.

In William-street, Mrs. Mangan.

On Friday evening last, at Modreeny, of an apoplectic fit, much and deservedly lamented, Lady Dancer, wife of Sir Amyrald Dancer.

After a few days illness, Richard Leslie Parker, Esq.

John Parker, of Rusty Park, County Kerry; a Gentleman of the most philanthropic disposition, and whose death is very deservedly lamented.

In Dublin, Mr. Joseph Robinson, architect.

At Seskanore Lodge, County Tyrone, George Perry, Esq.

Suddenly, in Carlow, Mr. Luke Foster, watchmaker.

In Cork, Mr. Thomas Haines, chandler.

In Malloy, Mr. John Duane.

In Dublin, Mrs. Lamb, wife of George Andouin Lamb, of Easthill, County Wicklow, Esq.

At Springfield, County Galway, Owen M'Dermott, Esq.

At Clondalkin, John Connolly, Esq.

In Tralee, of measles, aged ten years, Richard, second son of Rowan Purdon, Esq. M. D. This is the second child this Gentleman lost within a few weeks.

Mr. Andrew Fitzgerald of Carlow, saddler.

At Blackrock, Cork, Mrs. Robert Richardson.

At Dijon, in France, John Anderson, Esq. formerly of Abacross, County Cork.

In Paris, Sir Michael Cromie, Bart.

At Brymore, Somerset, Sir P. Hales, Bart.

David Steuart, Esq. formerly Lord Provost of Edinburgh.

At Logie, Lieutenant-Colonel Thomas Kinloch, of Kilris.

At Springkell, Charles Douglas Maxwell, aged 10 years, fourth son of Lieut.-General Sir John Heron Maxwell, Bart.

The Rev. Joseph Dixon, many years Rector of Sullington, Sussex.

Mrs. Jones, formerly of the Norwich Theatre.

The Rev. Edmund Garden, Rector of Kington, Wilts.

On the Continent, the Rev. Harry Waller, of Hall Barn, near Beaconsfield, Bucks, Rector of Farmington, Gloucestershire.

At Clapham Common, aged 17, Susan, daughter of J.
Cossins, of Weymouth, Esq. and niece to the Marchioness of Waterford.
