Q. Is it advantageous to the public interest?—I do; I think it advantageous, I certainly would not object to it for judicial purposes a certain number than a certain number with a view to the authority of the court and the execution of the Act is likely to influence the minds of the people, the bench cannot

Q. Has been in practice put upon that which allows the concurrent jurisdiction of magistrates within the local jurisdiction of cities?—There has been no construction put upon it to the honour to sit in the court.

Q. Has been—have county magistrates attended at such local jurisdictions, or have they attended?—Magistrates have never attended; the only one I have to deal with, is that of the city of Limerick, where never had a county magistrate upon the bench, and the mind was quite made up to exclude any other from sitting with us in the city.

Q. Have you found, that in the execution of the Act of Limerick, you have had what you would call a very small number of magistrates present?—Very small; the number was till the late Act of Parliament, by which six were added.

Q. Is that a very beneficial alteration?—Most

Q. Under that the extension of the same principle to the jurisdictions of Ireland, would or would not be?—From my knowledge of Limerick, I am of opinion most beneficial to others.

Q. Give that three magistrates of a corporation, who can wisely exercise the great power of government for the extension of the law, or negative the policy of such an application of opinion of course; I should say, that the number and the authority of those opinions upon an important subject, the better.

Q. Do you conceive it advisable that county magistrates should exercise the purposes of the Insurrection Act, exercise a jurisdiction with the local jurisdictions?—For executive purposes, I should say not; for executive purposes, I should say not; for executive purposes, I should say not; for executive purposes, I should say not.

Q. Is there no mode of improving the present system in Limerick, by extending the number of magistrates?—Extending the number of Magistrates, I am of opinion of the greatest possible utility to the city of Limerick there have been six added, and when I return to Limerick, matters will be fully settled by publishing Petty Sessions.

of the Marquis Wellesley sending down Mr. Blackburne to conduct the Fermanagh inquiry. That gentleman's conduct was most satisfactory to the public, serviceable to the government; and creditable to himself: and he (Mr. O'Connell) hoped, from the information which would be furnished by the Marquis Wellesley, that the Marquis would be induced not to confine the inquiry to the 16th May, but to obtain correct and official information respecting the other daily outrages committed by Orangemen in the North of Ireland.

Mr. O'Connell then gave notice of a motion for an address to the Lord Lieutenant, praying him to extend the inquiry of the Fermanagh outrage, to occurrences of other days, in addition to those of the 16th May.

The Limerick Chronicle

SATURDAY, JUNE 12.

Patrick Madigan, of Kildimo, died suddenly in Wickham-street, on Thursday afternoon.—The Mayor having been informed, that the unfortunate man was, for a few days previous, labouring under indisposition, from the effects of some wounds received near Kildimo, summoned all persons who could throw light on the affair, and accordingly, at an early hour yesterday morning, an inquest was held on the body, when after examining several witnesses, it appeared that his skull was fractured by several blows from stones in the head; a verdict of wilful murder was returned against three men. The Mayor immediately issued his warrant for their apprehension, and from the exertions using by Thomas P. Vokes, Esq. and the Police, there is no doubt but they will be brought to justice.

On Thursday, Mary Barry, an interesting child between nine and ten years old, was killed by the falling of some scaffolding from a house on George's-quay. The Mayor held an inquest on the body, and the jury returned a verdict accordingly, and ordered the boards to be forfeited as a deodand.

A disgraceful riot occurred between two factions, at the fair of Knocklong, on Monday, when several persons were wounded; Mr. Gubbins, Baron of the fair, received two cuts in the head, and a bye-stander had his skull fractured and died yesterday. But for the arrival of Captain Dumas, and his Police, who apprehended several of the wretches, there would be no calculating upon the consequences.

One Hundred Pounds are offered for the person who attempted to murder Mr. Boyle, in Cork.

The Magistrates of the County Tipperary, held a meeting at Killenaule, on Wednesday, and unanimously voted a resolution of thanks, to their efficient Officer, Edward Morgan, Esq. late of this City, for his active, zealous, and proper conduct, while in command of the Police, in that barony, for nearly three years.

A Steward of Colonel Townsend's was killed, near Skibbereen, on Tuesday.

A Clonmel Bailiff was wantonly attacked at Cashel, on Tuesday; the ruffians are secured.

Some trees were cut down at Moyarta, County Clare, the property of Mr. Morony.

was a warrant out against him for a night at Limerick.

Court—Heard him say he was at the fair and that he was falsely charged, and did not go to the fair; and that he was not arrested; heard the next morning, at dinner time arrested.

James Moore, P. P. sworn—Resided up to Limerick, in the prisoners' parish for 7 years; the Dawsons, he was applied to by their father since that time; thinks it proper to state reports prejudicial to the prisoners about 18 months ago; he enquired into them and found that they were malicious motives; it was a family quarrel frequently occurred in the neighbourhood, but he knows that the prisoners were not engaged in any onerous practices; such a thing could not escape his inquiry as to whether the prisoners had any possession, from a person on whose information he had three guns, two cases of pistols, and surrendered to the Civil Power, and was probably he was since removed from that parish; had arms they were not taken.

To Charles D. Oliver—Prisoners are not taken in the parish; the arms he mentioned do not exist in the parish; believes there are more arms in the parish; believes there are more arms in the parish; believes there are more arms in the parish.

Charles D. Oliver, Esq. sworn—Knows the prisoners for 12 years; they live two or three miles from Limerick; as bad and troublesome men as any in the parish; they are fond of rioting and fighting whenever they appear.

To Mr. Bevan—There are two families of the parish, and the prisoners' family are the worst; considers them most desperate characters; he is surprised if Mr. Moore swore to the reverse; as good an opportunity of knowing bad characters as any; but men form different opinions; thinks that he will exert himself as a loyal man to put down disturbance in the parish; his brother's house was attacked by the prisoners for arms; and that Mr. Moore's life was endangered by the exertions to suppress insurrection, and that he made to murder him in consequence, but he took precautions against it.

Here the case closed and the Magistrate's Chamber; in about half an hour they returned; Blackburne pronounced their decision. He spoke of the prisoners at some length, and dwelt upon the practice of assembling at fairs to fight, and the consequence—to be concluded with a most excellent address to the prisoners for their future good behaviour, after they were discharged.

David Kirby, Denis Welsh and Patrick Madigan indicted for being idle and disorderly at Ringmoy, 19th April.

Patrick Madigan sworn—Lives at Pallis; above night lived with his father at Ringmoy; prisoners 18 years; they all lived within a few miles of Limerick; witness was after returning from the Quarter; saw them in his father's garden, about 11 o'clock; above night; the dogs alarmed him and he went to the garden; four men taking away two ploughs and a pair of trees out of the garden; he was 20 perches from the garden; they did not see him; he followed them; he was unperceived within five or six yards of them; he saw the men; heard Connell say he did not see his father's plough, as he never injured any; said his should be broke as well as another; he saw the men; they said they were taking down while this was going on; they said they were taking down the ploughs and bury them in Mr. Hurst's dung; the ploughs went away with them; a search was made about 9 o'clock, and they were found in the garden; it was about a field and half from the house; it was the men; his father's ploughs, though he did not see them there.

The Recorder—Did not hear them give evidence; breaking the ploughs; Kirby's family and Madigan's; they had a quarrel; his sister is married to a brother.

Court—As they were going off they sung a song in dispraise of the Police and the Gentlemen of the Court.
