REV. GEO. OGLE VERNER'S BOARD- ING AND DAY SCHOOL,

79, Stephen's-Green, South;

ESTABLISHED FEB. 1817.

IN this School young Gentlemen are prepared for the Universities, the Royal Naval, Military, and East India Colleges, and for Mercantile departments. Mr. Verner trusts he may with confidence assert, that his plans are so arranged, (although including a complete English Course, French, Italian, Logic, Mathematics, Drawing, Music, Dancing, &c.) as not to interfere in the slightest degree with the progressive preparation of his Pupils for the various departments for which they are intended, which assertion, Mr. V. presumes, is fully borne out by the distinguished success they have had in the different Colleges, and also in the University of Dublin, in which, during the last year, four of them obtained the following distinctions, viz.:—two Science and three Classical Premiums, and a fifth place out of eighty-nine Candidates, at November entrance—and in the present year, six of them obtained the following, viz.:—three Certificates and three Premiums for Science, two Premiums for Classics, a first place, and a Premium in the Hebrew Scriptures, at entrance. These young Gentlemen were equally remarkable for their proficiency in French, Italian, Music, Drawing, &c. which proves that those lighter accomplishments are not incompatible with Scientific or Classical attainments, but rather assist and relieve the mind from its more serious studies, and fully justifies the opinion of Mr. Locke, "that a Boy should learn many languages, and the more of them he knows the better, but that they should be talked into him," which can only be accomplished where there are many Masters employed, and where each of them has a distinct time set apart for his Lectures. This plan Mr. V. has invariably pursued, and, after many years' practical experience, has found no reason to deviate from it. The most unremitting attention is paid to the morals and manners of his Pupils, as he is anxious to render them Gentlemen as well as Scholars. The House is spacious and airy, with a very large garden, and combines all the advantages of a Town and Country Residence, having the Square in front, and from thirty to forty acres of meadow in the rear. The Terms are—for Boarders 40, 50, or 60 Guineas per annum, according to the Class they enter, payable quarterly in advance; and, for Day Scholars, 12, 16, or 20 Guineas, subject to the same regulations, without any additional charge whatever.
Dublin, July 5, 1824.
