DEATHS.

On Saturday last at Cove, where she had been for the benefit of her bealth, Mary Knight, relict of the late Christopher Knight, Esq. of Knight-Lodge, in the Co Cork. Few have descended to the grave so sincerly and universally regretted as this amiable Lady. Gifted by nature with a beart, which benevolence might call her own, and ever under the guidance of religion's mild and benevolent spirit, she endeared berself to all who knew her. - She was tenderly and fondly loved by ber family whom her death has plunged into the deepest affiction, and many a friend will drop a tear when it is told that she is no more. But those who are mourning her loss, will rob affliction of much of its sting, by reflecting on the happy state to which a merciful Redeemer has raised ber as the reward of her unaffected piety and extensive but unostentatious Charities. Yes, when those who needed not her amistance will forget her, she will live in the recollections of the poor, her memory is embalmed in the grateful hearts of the hungry, the naked and the houseless.
