 In Glentworth-street, the truly fascinating and accomplished Mary Ann Bennett, eldest daughter of Samuel Bennett, Esq. Seldom has it fallen to our lot to record the demise of so much esteemed a young Lady; cheerful, gay, and animated, she led the social circle of her friends; benignant was her manner, warm was her heart, and sincere was her esteem; she died beloved by all her acquaintance, and her virtues will long be engraven on the bosoms of her friends—

Alas! that youth in all its bloom,
 Should fade untimely in the tomb;
 Alas! that love and beauty gone,
 Should lie beneath this envied stone.
 Weep, lovers weep, an Angel's fled,
 Too chaste in this vile world to wed.
