DEATHS.

On Sunday, at Parsonstown, deservedly regretted by his most respectable family and connexions, Falkiner Minchin, Esq. of Annagh, County Tipperary, Burgess of this Corporation, and late Captain in the gallant 27th Regiment or Enniskilleners; he served in America with his Regiment during that war, and had one brother killed and another severely wounded at Charleston; he was an exemplary honest man, and the best of husbands and fathers.

At Boulogne, Lieutenant Donovan, of the Royal Navy; a Gentleman universally beloved and esteemed, and whose death is very sincerely lamented.

At Nettleville, County Cork, Ryves Nettles, Esq.
On Wednesday evening, in Dublin, after three or four days illness, of Typhus fever, to the extreme afflic-tion of his family and friends, Benjamin Green, Esq. of Ennis, Attorney at Law, a man who in the relative connexions of Brother, Husband, Father, and Friend, was all that the human heart holds dear in life and deploras in death, while we are satisfied the people of the County Clare, to whom he was well known, (having for the second time, filled the office of Sub-Sheriff the last year), know that a man of more humane and honorable principles, or stricter probity or integrity seldom wins his way to the esteem of society; were we to judge only by a general sensation of regret, that seemed to pervade all ranks in this town, on the melancholy tidings of his premature decease, we would be borne out in saying his death was felt as a public loss.

In Rathkeale, at an advanced age, Mrs Hogan mother
