The execution of this illusion in London caused a sensation of the greatest delight and surprise—the articles having been instantly conveyed from the Adelphi Theatre to the Great Gun, in St. James's Park, which gun is night and day under the immediate charge of a sentinel; it also caused the greatest astonishment and delight in Oxford, where the articles borrowed were conveyed from the Exhibition Room to the top of the University Church, and was repeated four successive evenings in different and almost inaccessible places; also in Edinburgh, by the articles being conveyed to the top of Nelson's Monument; and in Dublin the article was found on the top of Nelson's Pillar.
Mons. F. T. will conclude his performance of his amazing Evolutions which gained so much applause since his arrival here.
