On Friday, in Clanbrassil-street, Dublin, Edward Hay, formerly Secretary to the Catholics of Ireland. The disease of which he died, was a mortification of the arm, caused by a thorn that entered his thumb not many days ago.—At the time of his death he had nearly prepared for the press a History of Irish Catholic affairs for the last thirty years. He was early elected a Member of the Royal Irish Academy. A Chancery suit with his brother, Major Philip Hay, 18th Hussars, had nearly reduced him to absolute want.

PAROCIAL CATHOLIC MEETING

A Meeting of the Roman Catholic in the Parish of MOKAGAY, held this day in the Chapel, at Rathcahill—

The Rev. JAMES CLEARY, P. P. in the presence of the following Resolutions were unanimously adopted:—

That we firmly, though mildly, petition Parliament for the Emancipation perfectly unqualified; and that we deprecate any measure purporting to restrict the franchise, or to interfere with the discipline of the Church.

That our local grievances be embodied in a petition to the Legislature of the Kingdom, as additional proofs to the Legislature of the necessity of continuing a system, the baneful effects of which are felt in all (even the remotest) parts of this distracted Kingdom.

That this day's meeting clearly proves the truth of the assertion so frequently made "that all our people are not interested in the same measures."

That we indignantly deny, together with the foundation of "divided allegiance."

That our heartfelt gratitude is pre-eminently due to the late Daniel O'Connell, Esq. the father of both.

That we cheerfully agree to pay the necessary expenses of the meeting.
