On Wednesday morning last, as the Cork Union New Day-Coach was driving through the turnpike-gate of Templemartin, County Kilkenny, a coal-waggon came in contact, by which the pole axle-tree and splenter bar were broken, and a panel of the Coach stove in. The Coach did not arrive in Carlow until late in the evening.

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 25.

Two young lads, John Stephen Ryan and William Ryan, brothers, were found dead in their beds on Thursday morning, in the neighbourhood of Pallis Green.— They retired to rest the previous night in perfect health.

Yesterday, Patrick Cusack, a boy, fell over the side of a brig in the Custom House and was drowned before the accident was observed. An inquest was held on the body by the Mayor, and a verdict of accidental death returned.

The 67th Regiment, under command of Col. Burslem, which landed from Calcutta, last week, in the Zenobia and Katherine Stewart Forbes, free traders, has been absent from England on service, for the period of twenty-one years.

Detachments for the 15th King's Hussars, 77th, and 91st Regiments, have left Westminster, for Bristol, to embark for Ireland.

The Louisa transport, Lieutenant Tringham, has arrived from the Coast of Africa, with invalids; left Sierra Leone, on the 21st September—the Colony tolerably healthy. During the sickly season the following officers died:—Major Gregg, Paymaster Nott, Lieutenants Godwin, Cooke, and Whyte, Volunteer Stapleton, Hospital Assistants Ryan, and Boag, all of the Royal African Corps, and Lieutenant Morgan, 2d West India Regt.

The following Promotions and Appointments have taken place in the Royal Marine Corps:—Lieutenant Colonel M'Cleverty to be Colonel Commandant of the Woolwich Division, vice Colonel Meares, retired from the service; Major Elias Lawrence to be Lieut. Colonel, vice M'Cleverty; Brevet Major N. H. English to be Major, vice Lawrence; First Lieutenant S. B. Ellis to be Captain, vice English; First Lieutenant Bloomfield, from half-pay, to be First Lieutenant, vice Ellis; First Lieut. James Fynmore, from half-pay, to be First Lieut. vice First Lieut. Darling, resigned his commission; First Lieut. George Spurin, from half pay, vice First Lieut.
 Charles Lloyd, to half-pay.

An explanatory notice appears in the London Gazette of Tuesday, regulating the distribution of the Grant of Prize-Money to the Army, which served under the command of Lieut.-General Sir Thomas Hislop, in the war against the Pindarees and certain of the Mahratta States, in the years 1817 and 1818. The distribution commences at the office, 8, Regent-street, London, on Saturday, the 25th instant, and ceases on Saturday, the 24th of February next. All officers, non-commissioned officers, soldiers, entitled to share, and their legal representatives, are to apply accordingly at this place for the satisfaction of their claims; if they are not preferred before the 25th February, the residue will be paid over to the fund of Chelsea Hospital, and to the Treasury of the East India Company. Every officer, at a distance, may draw for the amount of his portion through the medium of a banker, or any other respectable person, and the non-commissioned officers and privates through the agents of the Regiments to which they belonged. The representatives of deceased officers must produce the probate of their wills, or letters of administration, as the case may be; and the portion of non-commissioned officers and soldiers deceased will be paid only to their next of kin, executor, or administrator, satisfactorily proved to be such. Clergymen and Churchwardens are particularly requested to be correct in the certificates which may be forwarded on behalf of claimants. Bills at seven dayssight are to be drawn by officers, non-commissioned officers, and soldiers, for the amount of their respective claims, duly set forth therein, on

FROM THE DUBLIN MORNING RE NOVEMBER 20.

Qui caput ille facit.
 Unpleasant as it is to obtrude private transacthe attention of the public, there are neverththat cannot be understood or fairly judged unlesto the world's impartial opinion.
 For instance, not many days since, a person ento avail himself of circumstances peculiar to which the underneath letter alludes, and to author would affix his name in full, were motives of delicacy induce him to withhold public. In short it is unnecessary towards a object in view, as the person to whom the letter is cannot possibly mistake the man who offers his perfectly fitted to adorn his brow. Therefore further remains for the author to say or to do authorize the Editor of this Newspaper to give author's) address to any man who may dem-honourable purposes.

Dublin, 20th November
 Sir—With a generous intention of stimulat-evince something, at least, of that gallant spir-characteristic of the honorable profession to belong, I very lately sent you a third lecture respec-sanctioning the insolent language of your aged my wife. This third lecture, however, you have read, which pitiful manœuvre but tends to eninfamy you seem to court; considering the nature previous correspondence, and your having de-taken the letter that contained it out of view of that delivered it to you at —, not four Limerick.

Heavens! what conduct for a person who w-pass for a soldier!! But this affectation shall the exposure of its merits. In your first letter, assumed a lofty air, and a gallant style, which believe you were worthy of the character you g-self. This was as it should be, and my spirit gon the wings of hope. You in that letter sai-man could mistake for any thing else but a threat to be gallantly carried into execution, if I did not atone for what I said respecting your aged fath-lence to my wife. This atonement, however, made: for by the next post I indignantly flung cavalier threat, and unequivocally declared I apologize or withdraw a single word of what to you or your family.

Your impotent threat, Sir, was as follows am willing to make every allowance for the feelings under which you say you labored whe-ing me—otherwise I should feel myself under the noticing in a different manner than unwarrantable voked on my part) expressions relative to my fathin your letter to me."

Now, Sir, as you have read your own wor-perhaps you forgot) I hope, nay implore of you your manœuvres: for believe me, Sir, to be op-viction is ever a blessing, and to you, under
