

PRIETORS

ng, and Corballis, the Commisthe Westmeath Election, have Messrs. Deboy and Arabin are and Mr. Holwell Walshe for Mr.

ndon have signed a congratulatory Devonshire, on being appointed of the Tipperary Magistrates ing the appointment of the new illocks.

tors Court, last week, Charles ations in the Stamp and Post on allocating 20l. a year out of reditors.

han, of Maynooth, was reman-having fraudulently contracted ous bills.

ied from a Morning Cotemporary, to be a Report of the decision in s the Corporation Case, in the ppeared from the paragraph in on had stated, that the Corpora-ed to pay to the Paving Board a osts. Now, we have since been his Lordship's decision, and no ed in it, nor does his Lordship in ss use a single expression from could fairly be drawn.—Evening

ate boy, who had climbed in upon the ivy-crowned wall of w, missed his footing, fell to the
on the spot.

de child, aged 2 years, son of
of Graystown, near Killenaule, consequence of having fallen into

Savage swore informations before lead Police-Office charging Mr.
th rescuing a prisoner while in

Free, Esq. late Major in the d on Saturday at a meeting in es of resolutions were adopted, mpt in the Law Courts to asperse erable Archdeacon Trench.

ve generally have presented an Croke, P. P., on his being of Charleville.

of Theology in the College of challenge to a controversial dis-
r. Fishbourne.

writings. Dr. Doyle has expressed t the reading of the Bible had del.

Bishops of Connaught, in an distinctly recognise that impor-
freedom of conscience.

to get up a meeting in Waterford, y address to his Majesty on the

an Catholic Bishop of Ardagh,
y, in his late tour through that made in some of the Newspapers ving been received into the Rot-t Ballymahon and elsewhere, in on inquiry, to be false.—Cork

, the Jesuit, who had been some of this country by the Roman manifesting an attachment to Pre-cently arrived in Dublin, being in the County of Limerick, to

CALAMITOUS EFFECTS OF THE STORM OF WEDNESDAY—LOSS OF THIRTEEN LIVES ON THE SHANNON.

Twenty-five persons embarked in a sail-boat, near Beagh-Castle, in this river, on Wednesday, to collect seaweed, in the neighbouring Islands, for the purpose of manure. When heavily laden, and about to put off, several of those on board took alarm at the angry aspect of the waves, which, ruffled by the tempest, lashed the surrounding shore with unsparing fury. An all-wise Providence prompted the idea of danger; they disembarked and left their ill-fated companions (eleven men and two women) with a determination to encounter the passage home. The frail vessel was so over-loaded, by the anxiety or avarice of the owner to secure a large cargo, that she absolutely foundered in the coming tide, which, rushing like a torrent, overwhelmed her in an instant, within a few yards of land, leaving a wild blank, diversified only by the evanescent prospect of thirteen human beings struggling between this world and the next. The agonizing cries of the wretched sufferers were hurried on the blast towards shore, where their distracted friends, unable to afford assistance, gazed intently on the spectacle of life and death. But the almost intolerable suspense existed for a moment only—idle was the contest of weak mortality, when an immense surge choked the last effort of expiring nature. In the space of fifteen minutes, their bodies, borne on the bosom of the sullen waves, rolled slowly and heavily to the nearest shore, where the receding waters left them without a spark of life, to be vainly clasped in the fond embrace of despairing friends and kindred, whose bitter cries not even the howling blast could smother.

This deplorable record of calamity has plunged many families into the depth of sorrow and distress; in one instance, nine children have become destitute orphans. The boat was the property of a man, named Grady.

Two sail-boats foundered in the same gale of wind at Kildysart, but the crews were fortunately saved.

On the above day, also, a sail-boat foundered near the mouth of Askeaton river. The crew took to the mast head, where they clung, though frequently washed by the waves, until a boat observed their danger. They were released, and conveyed in safety to shore.

A letter received by us, this day, from an officer of the 22d Regiment, dated Stoney Hill, Jamaica, the 27th of March, states, "The Regiment is very healthy, not one case of fever since our landing, and the officers and men in high spirits."

Yesterday, the first division of the 34th arrived at Templemore, to replace the 53d, now on a route to occupy the station of the 37th at Cork.

On Thursday, the 31st Instant, the detachments of the 24th Regiment stationed at Newcastle, Rathkeale, Abbeyfeale, Glin, Askeaton, Shanagolden, Adare, and Patrick's Well, will be replaced by the 37th from Cork.

On Saturday, the 2d June, the first division of the 37th Regiment will arrive in this Garrison, and take up the quarters of the 24th, who proceed for Athlone, on Monday, the 4th June, where they replace the 61st Regiment, ordered for Dublin duty.

The depot of the 29th, at Tralee, daily expect to be moved.

The depot of the 19th Regiment marched, yesterday, from Cove to Kinsale.

The depot of the 97th Regiment have arrived at Buttavant from Cork, to replace the 10th, under Major Freer, who have moved to Cove, Spike Island, &c.

Major-General Sir Charles Doyle left this, yesterday, for England.—During his temporary absence, the command of the Garrison devolves on Colonel Worsley, Royal Artillery.

His Majesty's ships Romney, and the Arab transport, have sailed from Portsmouth, and are daily expected at

THE THEATRE.

The new Company, from Cork, under M appeared last night—Sinclair a delightful gave universal pleasure to a crowded ho circle was quite full. He was supported brilliant style by Miss Holmes. This eve tainment will be a bright treat; arrange progress, adapted to insure every thing wi fastidious critic in Theatricals could possibl

BIRTHS

At Nantenant Glebe, in this County, the Rev. James W. Graves, of twins, a Loy making the number of fifteen children, all living.

At Beel-House, County Waterford, the L. William Mason, Esq. of a son.

At Westport, County Mayo, the Lady Robert Potter, of a son.

At the Abbey-house, Waterford, the L. Newport, Esq. of a daughter.

MARRIAGES.

In St. Thomas's Church, Dublin, Hen Esq. to Caroline Augusta, relict of Sanders head, formerly of Castlecomer, County Kilk

In Dublin, Beauchamp Colclough, Esq. County Carlow, to Mary Anne, eldest dau ward Jones, of Troomville-Lodge, in same

Florian William Gutz, Esq. of Paris, to daughter of Samuel Bohy, of Abbey-street,

In Donabate Church, by the Venerable King, George Frederick Johnson, Esq. to J of the Rev William Hamilton, Rector of L

At Caherconlish, on Thursday, by the Mr. D. Coleman, Parsonage-House, to Mis late of Bath.

In Dublin, John Patterson, Esq. of W street, to Mayabella, eldest daughter of th man John Alley, of that City.

In Cork, William Carne, Esq. to Mary the late W. B. Brewer, Esq. of the Royal Henry Dennehy, Esq. of Tivoli, Coun to Anne, second daughter of William D Ballymahon, in the Queen's County.

At Carrick-on-Suir, John Power, Esq. widow of the late Patrick Power, of Tinha

At Dungarvan, Barton Anderson, Esq. only daughter of the late Maurice Kennedy

At Tenby, Wales, Joseph Beasley, Esq. of the late Joseph R. Beaseley, Esq. of A County Tipperary, to Henrietta Maria, dau Ellis Boates, Esq. and niece to the late L

At Calcutta, John Dempster, Esq. M. jesty's 38th Regiment, to Agnes, fourth d late A. Colquhoun, Esq.

In London, J. McClelland, Esq. to daughter of Thomas Curtayne, of Woody Esq.

Charles Lennox Grenville Berkeley, E Elizabeth, daughter of the late James Her of Stoneleigh Abbey, in the county of W

DEATHS.

At the Castle Barracks, on Wednesday Master of the Band of the 32d Regiment

At his father's house, in Bridge-stre Egan.—A young man of good character.

At Parsonstown, in the 12th year of Rachel, second daughter of the late Rev. C of Tully, in the County Roscommon—a of the most engaging and interesting bore a lingering illness with the great resignation—she has left a widowed moth loss of a dutiful and affectionate child.

In Killarney, Freeman Donoghue, E