To the Parishioners of and Gentle
 near O'Brien's Bridge.

MY DEAR FRIENDS.—The very kind taken of expressing your sentiments towards you, will always remain deeply imprinted although I fear through partiality you have much to over-rate my humble exertions in t Great Master.

To tread in that path pointed out by the Christian Pastor, to reprove, to rebuke, t excites feelings in the human heart, hostile derstanding which should subsist between a r flock, but that you have approved of the ma have endeavoured to discharge those duties, a source of real gratification. In return for y for my happiness and future welfare, accept t thanks, and be assured a similar feeling ex towards you, and that to nothing I look anxiously, than to hear of your enjoying tha which arises from a perfect knowledge of th up doctrines.

This shall always be my first wish, an recollections I shall ever remain,

My dear friends, yours most sincerely and
 GEORGE
 March 29, 1831.
