

We have earnestly to recommend the attention of the Magistracy of this County to the Attorney-General's Speech at Ennis, especially the lucid expose which that honorable and learned gentleman has given of the Whiteboy code, its powers and penalties. No Magistrate can be ignorant of his duty after that statement, and we have arrived at a crisis, when a prompt and vigorous exercise of the authorities conferred by this statute is imperatively necessary to crush the disposition now apparent in our own County, to follow up the fearful outrages in the adjoining district of Clare. "Obsta principiis" is a maxim of great and acknowledged efficacy. Never, perhaps, was it more essential to the general security of all classes to enforce it than at present. The contagion which diseases all the relations of society in Clare, threatens to invade the County of Limerick. Let not our tranquillity be interrupted by the vile arts of incendiaries; the apathy evinced by the Authorities in Clare has been pointedly reflected on as incentive to disturbance in that County. Let not the same unworthy reproach be retorted on us. The laws are now sufficient, if administered with energy and judgment, to repress the incipient symptoms of insubordination. Let us not be necessary to our own ruin, and the cause of endless misery to thousands of ignorant and deluded creatures, who must eventually be sufferers, if we don't interfere to save them from themselves! The remedy is now in the hands of the Magistracy, and they have an obligation to discharge, which is not only their duty but their interest. Nip the evil in the bud, while it may be done with facility and success, for we shudder to think of what otherwise must ensue.

On Thursday, Mr. Commissioner Burrowes held a Sessions for relief of Insolvent Debtors, when the following were discharged from the County:—William Hopkins, John Barry, Maurice Power, Denis Dwyer, and Richard Heffernan. Those were the only petitioners for the benefit of the Act.

Yesterday, Mr. Commissioner Burrowes held a Court for the relief of Insolvent Debtors in the City Court, when the following were liberated:—Thomas Griffin, Michael O'Farrell, William Masterson, William M'Cann, Stephen M'Mahon, Florence Donovan, Hugh Molony, Denis Condon, Denis Keating, John Grace, Timothy Hayes, and John Rochford. The petitions of John Conway, John Hehir, and Martin Graham, were dismissed.

The 1st or East Devon Militia were inspected on Friday the 8th, by their Colonel Lord Viscount Ebrington; on Saturday they gave up their arms at the Castle of Exeter, and on Monday were disbanded, having on that day completed the 28 days for which they were enrolled. The progress which this regiment made in so short a time is truly astonishing, and their inspection on Friday was the admiration of all who witnessed it.—Their barrack rooms and messing were in every respect regular and soldier like, much credit is due to Captain Holman the Adjutant, who with very little assistance accomplished in 25 days what many officers thought would have required several months. Captain Holman served for many years in the gallant 52d Light Infantry, and was present at most of the battles in the Peninsula and at Waterloo.

We have received letters from Ceylon to a recent date in November. The 58th and 61st Regiments were in good health at Colombo. The former had but 21 men in Hospital. The 78th and 97th Regiments were also healthy, the former at Kandy, the latter at Trincomalee.

We give exclusively this day the proceedings of two Courts Martial at Ceylon, upon Captains Grant and Sadlier, 58th Regiment, at the instance of their commanding-officer, Lieut.-Col. Miller Clifford.

An image of Mr. Thomas Spring Rice, M. P. between 7 and 8 feet in altitude, of polished marble, was placed on Thursday at the top of the tall stone column, in Pery-square.

The Cork City Sheriffs have received a respite for Joseph Nagle, convicted at the late Assizes, of robbery near St. Patrick's Bridge.

That very elegant and ornamental building, Barrington's Hospital, the munificent gift of a private family to the Citizens of Limerick, stands proudly conspicuous amongst the public and charitable institutions of our City. Wednesday the 15th of April, 1831.

DEATHS.
 At her father's, Mr. Henry Denmeade, 54, Thomas-street, on Thursday evening, Mrs. Mary Kendal, relict of the late Captain John Kendal. The melancholy and appalling circumstance of the shipwreck of the Frances Mary, of New Brunswick, homeward-bound from North America, early in the year 1826, to Liverpool, must be fresh in the recollection of our readers, when Captain Kendal, and the subject of the present record, with another female, and three of the crew, were for 32 days exposed to the horrors and privations of one of the most distressing calamities at sea within the last century, and but for the timely and humane assistance afforded by his Majesty's ship Blonde, Captain Lord Byron, must inevitably have met a watery grave. The painful results of this most disastrous voyage laid the foundation of a series of ill health to poor Mrs. Kendal, who at length fell a victim midst the utmost care and attention of her family. Her conduct throughout has been marked by exemplary piety and devotedness to the will of her Redeemer, and her death is most sincerely regretted by her numerous family and friends, as well as the several masters of vessels trading to this port within the last seven years. She has left one child, a promising boy about thirteen years of age.
