 the press to announce, that information has arrived of the English fleet, under Sir E. Codrington, having defeated the French fleet, under Admiral Scheldt. The British squadron has proceeded to the Scheldt, and will be in time to prevent the bombardment of the Dutch.

14 Dutch men of war in the Scheldt. The Prince of Orange and his father are not on speaking terms. The Emperor of Russia's thought that Russia, Austria, and Prussia, will be able to drive the Dutch.

This morning received by estafette the French despatches of yesterday, but they bring nothing new in the formation of the new Ministry, nor is it by any means under whose auspices it will eventually be formed. Names named from time to time as called on by the Emperor's Cabinet were, M. Roy, M. Dupont de Nemours, M. de Cazes. As not even the head of the new Ministry is positively known, it may be imagined that little will be done to its members. Thus much alone appears certain from the following members of the Ministry had proposed—M. Casimir Perier, General Sebastiani, Baron M. Montalivet.

No news from Poland. The cholera is making rapid progress in every district of the north. The troops were reviewed at Paris on the 28th inst. from St. Petersburg state that a new army is forming in the environs of that capital, under the command of General Cavalli Vasseltchekoff.

It is reported that the King of Prussia is dead. A bombardment has taken place in the Tagus by the fleet. Lisbon itself is described to be in a most deplorable state of distraction and distress. Several respectable persons were thrown into the prison at Lisbon last week.

A conspiracy has been discovered in France, in which several of the persons connected with it are under arrest. It is proved that a large quantity of arms and ammunition had been purchased in London, and introduced into France.

No further political news than that published in the Chronicle. Great anxiety now prevails to see the conduct of the Russian Cabinet in regard to the affairs of the Dutch. It is said that in the Council held last night with the representatives of the five Powers, which lasted till eleven o'clock, great differences prevailed, and things did not go off in a very happy manner.

The Premier says, "We are authorised to state that the Emperor of Russia and Prussia engaged, in the name of the respective Courts, that no assistance should be given to the French of Holland against Belgium. Whether the mediation of the French in favor of the Belgians will be successful on this engagement remains to be seen."

The Emperor of Prussia refused to afford any satisfaction to the representatives of England, for allowing arms to be sent to her dominions by Russia, to act against Poland. A public despatch received this morning, announces that an engagement has already taken place at Ghent, between the Belgian and Dutch troops.

It is understood in the city, that the steam-boat which arrived on Saturday afternoon from the Scheldt, conveys a message to the King of Belgium of immediate support and aid in the war with the Dutch.

It is on the eve of flinging off the Austrian yoke, and to fight for the Poles. The English at Brussels left on Friday in the greatest numbers. Several females, without clothing, quitted the city, and are the order of the day. The persons apprehensive of Ghent being occupied by the French troops within a few days.

The English gun-makers and others, are executing a plan for arms on behalf of the Russian Government. There is no confirmation of the report that all the British at Santa Fe had been massacred. The King is gone through last night in the House of Commons. The only division that occurred was that on the motion, 264 Against 160—Majority, 104. The progress is under the influence of Lord Durham. The progress was made in schedule D. the consideration of which will doubtless conclude to-night. The Lord Mayor of London, Alderman Kay, is created Viscount of Alington. The Palace is to be occupied by the King: it is valued at £70,000 to place it in tenable order. The Deanery of Clogher, is worth £1000 a-year. Among the tenants of the see of Derry, there is a Mr. Chambers, who rents some thousand acres of land in the neighbourhood of Strabane; his family have held the estate under the see for many generations, but in consequence of a dispute with the late Bishop as to the terms of renewal, the Bishop determined to run his life against the lease; that is, to take the chance of outliving the term of 21 years, which had been granted to Mr. Chambers. At the time of his death, but two years remained unexpired; feeling himself unwell, the bishop intimated to the tenant that he was ready to terminate the dispute, and to give him a new lease, upon the payment of £21,000. The deeds were actually dispatched, and on the road to the bishop, when he died. The lands are worth £6000 a-year!!!

The people of Galway are to meet on Sunday, to petition Parliament to disband the Yeomanry.

EPICEDIUM,

On the death of John Toler, Earl of Norbury.
 A paradox in fate behold,
 Norbury, whose wit charm'd young and old,
 Now fills all hearts with dolor;
 In death's last slumber, mute and cold
 He lies—and whilst his knell is toll'd,
 We deeply mourn the TOLER.

Mr. Denis O'Shaughnessy, land-surveyor, of the town of Tipperary, while accompanied by an assistant, was murdered early on Friday evening last, near Dundrum, when valuing tythes for the Rev. Mr. Armstrong, of Clonkelly Glebe, in the parish of Kilpatrick. A fellow approached under a friendly guise and suddenly struck Mr. O'Shaughnessy in the head with a stone, knocking him into a dyke. An armed party, that lay in ambush, now pounced upon their prostrate victim, and fired two shots into his body.—The effect was instantaneous death. George Bradshaw, of Pegsboro', Esq. Coroner, held an inquest on his remains, shortly after at the adjoining Police station, Donnakea, and as no evidence could be had, the Jury found a verdict—"Murdered by a person or persons yet unknown." This sanguinary and fatal outrage was perpetrated in a field within view of fifteen houses, two only ten yards distant.—Mr. O'Shaughnessy was a very respectable and intelligent Surveyor, whose sudden and irreparable loss a widow and seven children have to deplore—their sole friend and provider! Nothing can exceed the grief of his distracted partner, and her helpless orphans.

Saturday night the cross of Cluggin, in the County Limerick, was the scene of another savage murder. Milo Burke, a respectable tenant, and confidential agent of George Bradshaw, Esq. was wantonly murdered within 200 yards of his own house, and his head and brains dashed about the road! James Bennett, Esq. Coroner, held an inquest on the body, on Monday—Verdict, "Wilful murder, by some person or persons unknown."

The greatest exertions are using to detect the perpetrators of these horrid murders, and we trust a few days will enable us to announce their apprehension.

Sunday night the habitation of the herdsman of Mr. R. Cubbins, of Ulla, near Tipperary, was forcibly entered by an armed band, who immediately assaulted Doherty, the herdsman, and fractured his skull so badly, that recovery is hopeless. A stranger, who passed the evening in the house, was likewise attacked, and the wanton ruffians broke his arm in two places. The cause assigned for the outrage on the herdsman is refusal to marry a country girl.

Richard Hewitt, another of the persons concerned in robbing and attempting to murder Mr. Norblad, at Dromineer, was apprehended at Thurles, on Saturday.

Charles Mahon, Esq. of Cahircalla, arrested one of the principals in the murder of Sergeant Robinson, at Ballinacally, on Sunday. His name is Carew.

A description of the persons concerned in the murder of William Blood, Esq. and of Mr. Synges Steward, for whose apprehension the Lord Lieutenant has offered a reward, appears in first page.

On Sunday night, William Quinn, Collector of County Taxes, was assaulted and robbed of £62, by two men near Clonoulty, and on Monday two other collectors were stopped by an armed party near Carrigeen, from whom they escaped, by the fleetness of their horses.

The Bank of Ireland has advertised Mr. Walter Mitchell, of Galway, merchant; he has gone off, taking with him bills of lading of four vessels with 265 tons of meal, flour and oats.

A few nights ago John Clarke eloped from Maryborough, taking with him notes and goods to nearly the amount of £300 from Mr. John Clarke of that town.

Particulars of the awful catastrophe in the valley of Glanfesck, county Kerry, where eight-and-thirty human beings perished by the irruption of a mountain torrent, appear in fourth page. A farmer named Lucy, his daughter-in-law, 2 children and 2 servants, a woman named Lahane and her 2 children, two carpenters, a servant man named Donovan, and a gamekeeper of the name of Connor, were among the persons swept away by the destructive flood, which is now 15 to 16 feet deep in the Glen. The bodies of nine of the sufferers were interred on Saturday. Three females who perished were near confinement. Twenty-one cows and 15 firkins of butter, belonging to the farmer Lucy, were destroyed.

Thomas Blennerhassett, a schoolmaster, cut his throat, from ear to ear, at Kilmally, County Kerry, on Mouday.

Burrisleigh fair passed off on Saturday without riot; the appearance of the Police and several Magistrates, with Capt. Fothergill's Company of the 50th, from Templemore, prevented two factions from gratifying their thirst for blood.

STATE OF THE COUNTY GALWAY.

Seventeen outrages of the most revolting nature were committed in the County Galway within the last ten days, exclusive of the many which we noticed in our two last Papers.

On Sunday a party of Terry Alts attacked the residence of Captain Burke, of Clough, in his absence at Loughrea, and took two cases of pistols, two guns, a blunderbuss, and his military sword. They went to Mr. John Prendergast's herd at Lisdiff, and swore him to give up the herding, and flogged him severely for not complying with a former notice to quit.

Same night a party of Terry Alts went to a man of the name of Quinn, residing at Rahyconer, and beat him most unmercifully for not complying with a notice served on him to give up lands.

On Friday evening five armed men went to the house of a poor man named Cloonane, at Derrew, near Killmore, and beat him severely for not surrendering according to Terry's mandates, lands which he took a few years ago. This happened in the centre of a large and populous village, and the perpetrators escaped.
