COLONEL McCARTHY, 96th REGIMENT.
 He commenced his career as a Volunteer in a Regiment of the 1st Foot, in which rank he fought under the Duke of York in the Campaign of Holland.
 From Dunkirk his Royal Highness was in the preservation of himself and Staff, to one of the most remarkable acts of reckless intrepidity and total disregard of danger ever characterised this brave man. The attacking party of French dragoons appeared in the act of making a charge that was inevitably fatal, had not McCarthy, who was in the party, perceiving the danger, dashed down upon them, and saved the Army in Holland its Commander-in-Chief, on the same day, the Duke of York owed his escape to the arm of McCarthy, when making his escape from the enemy; he, with his horse, were borne away by the rapid current of that river, and must have perished had not the band of this brave and generous man rescued him from impending death—by rowing to shore. During the same campaign, it was he who captured the Fort of Kebl, which was surrounded by the enemy, and volunteered to lead the Forlorn Hope, and notwithstanding that he had to wade above his shoulders in the water, succeeded in scaling the wall alongside the bastion, to which were placed two pieces of artillery; and, in the midst of matches lighting; he took his horse by the muzzle and knocked down seven of them, and, on coming to his assistance, the cannon were fired, and the gates opened to the storming party. In the night the Colonel of his Regiment took him by the hand, and said, "There are 150,000 men now fighting against you, and you have succeeded without success, if I had 40,000 such as you, I would march to Paris. One anecdote worthy of record, but only shews the bravery of this singularly cool and intrepid man, but is characteristic of the coolness that ever distinguished his career.—On coming to breakfast after a hard day's fighting, during which he had many skirmishes with the enemy, his countryman, Colonel Mahony, who was in the skirts of his coat were shot away—he, on being asked to reply, "the scoundrels would not even leave me alive."
 Soon after he received a Lieutenant's commission in the Queen's German Legion, and was of the party that captured the French cavalry at Aboukir, at the celebrated battle of Alexandria, where his regiment distinguished itself by the capture of the Invincible Standard, and in which he was wounded. Becoming attached to a British Regiment, he received the designation of the 97th (afterwards the 100th) and served with it almost thro' the Peninsular war, and was promoted to the rank of Lieutenant-Col., the just and triumphant reward of his reckless daring and bravery.
 In the last American war his regiment was actively engaged, and returned from thence too late, by one or two days, to be present in the overthrow of Napoleon.
 McCarthy was born in the year 1770, in Iveragh, County Kerry, and on Thursday the 18th inst. after a short but brilliant life, full of honors, his mortal remains were, at the age of 72, consigned to the tomb of his ancestors in the Aghadoe church, Killarney. It was a strange and happy coincidence, that on that day twelve months before he died, he was in the triumphal car of the Hon. W. Browne, a gentleman, on the same road, to Killarney, on the day of his return for the county of Kerry to Parliament.

Major Mitchell, commanding the detachments of the 1st Foot in this district, left for Fermoyle, from an Officer of the 36th at Barbadoes, dated the 10th inst., to a friend in this City, states "that the 1st Foot is remarkably healthy, and that less military are in the ranks when the corps was stationed in Limerick."
 The 1st Light Infantry is ordered from Portsmouth to the 1st Foot, and the 89th are expected to replace the 1st Foot in Portsmouth.

SURGEON DENTIST KEALE
 Since his return from Waterford and Cork, he has been unavoidably detained by urgent business.
 In the course of his tour he had frequently noticed the serious injuries and bad effects of Mineral Teeth, commonly called Mineral, and he is now determined to condemn their use.
 The patient declaring them to be perfect, had, in consequence, to replace them with natural teeth—which he has several hundred, of the quality that no professional man in the Kingdom can equal them.
 Mr. K. deems it superfluous to comment on the superior construction of his Artificial Teeth, a model of nature and perfect requisite.
 He has to apologise for having neglected his patients by his temporary absence from London.
 N. B.—Mr. K. can accommodate with Mineral Teeth at Four Pence Halfpenny each, his PURIFIED HUMAN and SEA-SHELL Teeth at Sixpence each.

POLICE INVESTIGATION
 AN Investigation, by order of the Governor, at Parsonstown, on Saturday, the 1st inst., by John Harvey, the Inspector-General, to inquire into certain charges preferred against Judge, Esq. C. C. of the King's County, by the High Sheriff and a number of several of the Gentry, Clergy, and County.
 The charges which were preferred against the Judge, arrived in town early in the day, and the Inquiry, were, in substance:—That the Judge took a part in the late Election of the County, in the person of the successful Candidates, Colonel Bernard, and attempted to influence the vote in their favor. About 12 o'clock on Saturday the proceedings by saying that, by the Inquiry into the conduct of a Candidate for the County, on charges brought forward, he wished to say that he did not sit there in violation of law, but merely as an officer appointed by the Government to attend to the evidence brought forward to sustain the charges, and in defence of the person so charged.
