DEATHS.

On the 14th instant, at Oxford-place, Plymouth, Grace, the beloved wife of William Watson, Esq. R. N. and eldest daughter of the late Edmund Fitz-Gerald, Esq. of Ashville, near this City—a Lady who was endeared to her family and numerous connections by the possession of every amiable disposition and social virtue. But it was not from any retrospect of her life (exemplary as it was, in our fallen nature,) that she derived hope and consolation in her latter end—The Gospel or glad tidings of the Grace of God, testifying that His son, Christ Jesus, came into the world to save sinners, even the chief—is the record in which it was given her (years past) to place exclusive and unlimited confidence; and she departed rejoicing in Him, as being all her salvation, and all her desire.

MARTIN DOYLE'S

We cannot bestow too much praise on the —Quarterly Journal of Agriculture, No. 1 HINTS originally intended for the the County of Wexford, but cal-part of Ireland, by Mr. Martin Doyle.
Stereo-type. One Shilling.

The whole seems to be more likely to be that class for which it is intended than any kind that we have hitherto met with—4/6

IRISH COTTAGERS, by Martin 2s. 6d. boards.

We sincerely wish that we had it in our copy of this work in every Cottage in Ireland upon its occupants, male and female, ei-have it read to them two or three times a ye impossible for them we think to become ac-simple precepts, the practical and interesti it embraces, without deriving from them intensive benefit.—Monthly Review.

It contains advice worthy the best attenti-man; it shows the Small Farmer how he comforts and be happy; and the Landlord general welfare of his tenantry, and the improvement of his country depend on his sition.—British Farmer's Magazine.

HINTS on Planting, Cattle, Poultry, Harrows, Flax, &c. &c. By Martin Doyle, HINTS on Road-making, Ventilation, Temperance, Education, &c. By Marti
Is. sewed.

We can conscientiously say, that they are productions, that instruction and amusem most happily blended, that from their hom calculated for the meanest understandings, tion they contain is of the most useful de we should be glad to see them in every Co Ireland, but in England and Scotland.—

We have not for a long time met with a than Martin Doyle, and of whose little for us.—Catholic Patriot.

The WORKS of MARTIN DOYLE ing the above four Works bound in one.

The Works of Martin Doyle are calcu-good to Ireland than the folio works of o authors.—National Magazine, No. 7.

They are written with all the life and tr for which Cobbett's popular Works are so r out any of his impiety and disloyalty aminer, No. 67.

An ADDRESS to the LANDLORDS subjects connected with the Melioration of with Plans and Estimates for Draining, F Cottages, &c. &c. By Martin Doyle. 12

We strongly recommend Martin Doyl Irish Landlords. It is full of practical h persuasions for the employment of capita way to ensure occupation and improvement and increase of wealth and respectability themselves.—Spectator.
