Strive hard for paltry pelf,
Unmindful of their final doom,—
Acquiring all for self.
Unmindful &c.
Let us, unlike the sad and sour,

Seize upon this festive hour,
And banish all that's woeeful!
Seize upon &c.
Then fill for woman—fine and gay!
Our charn 'gainst grief and sadness,—
And wish her ev'ry night and day,
The sweets of love and gladness!
And wish &c.

In yon eternal fields of light
Thy blissful Spirit moves,—
Bright Angels hail the welcome guest
To their celestial groves.

On earth 'twas his to tread the path
His blest Redeemer trod:—
His grace enriched that Sacrament
Which led him to his God.

And now before His Holy Throne,
He joins the Angelic Choir;
His grateful tongue resounds his praise,
With all an Angel's fire.

Through vast eternity 'tis thine
To sing His boundless love —
Oh! may He lend me, Brother dear,
To share thy bliss above!
