 the Rev. Mr. O'Rourke—Resolved, That the marked thanks of this meeting is due and be hereby given to Richard O'Shaughnessy, Esq. not only for his very proper conduct in the Chair, but for the zeal, energy, and devotion he has at all times displayed in promoting the interests of his fellow-countrymen in general, but of those Parishes in particular.

HENRY LYONS, J.P. Chairman.

Fedamore, July 1, 1832.

ANTI-TITHE MEETING IN FEDAMORE.

[COMMUNICATED.]

On Sunday another great Tithing Meeting took place in Fedamore to petition against Tithes. As in Croom, the avenues leading to the town were neatly decorated with newly planted bowers prettily interwoven, and bent together at the top so as to form an elegant festooned arch, surmounted with a handsome piece of green serge with the words "Reform, No Tithes, No Church Rates, 1832," printed in large characters; as the people passed under these arches, and on reading inscription they bowed most respectfully as if the God of liberty himself had directed them to do so, and then gave three cheers. The town began to present something like liveliness at 12 o'clock, when the people began to assemble from every direction, accompanied by bands of music playing the favourite airs of "Patrick's Day, Gairyowen, the Sprig of Shillelah," &c which was responded to by the multitude already assembled. It being announced that the Croom-men were coming, the Fedamore gentry went to meet and welcome them, and on approaching the town nothing could equal the sympathy of feeling and the kindness in which they embraced each other. These men (we mean the Croom) were preceded by standard-bearers carrying one dozen of flags or colors, as many Pipers mounted on grey chargers, whose scotch airs enlivened the scene, and in the rear were to be seen Mr. Henry Lyons's men commanding order and marshalling them in military movement. On reaching the town, Mr. Lyons had each man served with refreshment, soon after this Henry Lyons, Esq. followed and was repeatedly cheered as he passed along, and on reaching the centre of the street he was loudly called on to ascend the platform, which he did amid the most deafening cheers—About this time the meeting were multiplied to about 25,000 persons—the order in which the people entered the village was extremely pretty, as well from their sobriety as from their determination to abstain from drinking ardent spirits, or in indulging in any movement likely to disturb the public peace. There were nearly as many females elegantly attired as there were males, who joined in the cheers of the day, and who otherwise graced the proceedings by their playful but modest airs and other endearing movements, all calculated to "soothe the savage breast and lull the noisy tumults of the soul." The Chair being about to be taken, it was announced that the Kilballyowen, Herbertstown, Bally-brieken men were coming on, and therefore that it was better wait their arrival which took place in about fifteen minutes, amidst the cheers of the multitude.

Having now given an outline of the meeting, it may not be wrong to describe the demeanor and appearance of the people. As has before been observed, they began to assemble at an early hour, neatly clad and ornamented with flowers and orange and green ribbands, and it was so arranged that each parish should proceed in one body headed by an intelligent and active leader chosen from among themselves, this mode of arrangement had the most happy and salutary effects as it prevented them from straggling or indulging in drink, but their leaders took special care to have them well served up with ale and bread at their own expence in the first instance, and at the expence of their leaders in the next; during the day not a man was to be seen drunk or inclined for quarrelling, though the people were naturally inclined to be all Peace-officers on the occasion, yet the gentlemen were incessant in parading the streets and exhorting them to order. We particularly noticed Mr. R.
 O'Shaughnessy as one of the most active in this way, to whom the people paid the most marked attention. Mr. Edw.
 Molony was equally active, as was also Mr. Quinn, Mr.
 Rice, and many other Gentlemen, with whom we were not acquainted.
