

THE LIMERICK CHRONICLE.

The Rev. Mr. Dalton followed Mr. Costello. In proposing a vote of thanks to Mr. Clarke, he said—that he rejoiced to see a respectable and intelligent Protestant Gentleman in the Chair—(cheers.) This was the more cheering as it proved an unanimity of feeling, without which the country could never prosper. The title impost had set neighbour against neighbour, but the course now pursuing, and pursuing with a certainty of success, was calculated to heal those wounds inflicted by dissention, sectarian hatred, and bigotry. The enemies of Ireland, of civil liberty had endeavoured to array the people of England against Ireland, but they had failed, for the people of England are now our friends, our warmest supporters; thanks to O'Connell for it—(cheers.) He attended the tithe meeting at Ballylanders where over 200,000 persons had assembled to enter their protest against the voluntary payment of tithes in money—(cheers.) He would recommend the people not to support any candidate who would not pledge himself to oppose the continuance of tithes, and every other measure that presses upon the country—(cheers, and we went.) You men of Limerick will shortly have it in your power to return two members to Parliament, and I trust you will do your duty—we will, we will, and we wont have Rice.) Though I would not advise you not to hold any communication with any man valuing, collecting, or paying tithes, yet I could not blame you for such a course if you had adopted it; nor would you be very incorrect in not cutting their corn, turf, or hay. The Attorneys of Tipperary have done their duty towards the country, and it rests with you to make those of Limerick do the same—(cheers, and we will.) That the Parsons should enforce the tithes is natural, but if you do your duty by cutting off the supplies, you will leave the Parsons in the lurch. Stanley is forming an Act for this country worse than that in being for the enforcement of the tithes in 1831, but if you act correctly you will defeat that Act. They may incarcerate you in Jail, but they cannot keep you long there. Avoid all illegal associations; preserve peace and order and the battle is won. I shall not trouble you any longer; and will conclude in the words of Doctor Doyle, "May your hatred of tithes be as lasting as your love of justice—(cheers.)"

A vote of thanks to Daniel O'Connell being moved by Mr. Nunan, Mr. William Kirby proposed an amendment to this effect.

"Resolved—That we hereby express our unalterable attachment to the person and interest of Daniel O'Connell, and that his late castigation of that——Spring Rice, has given us the greatest satisfaction."

Mr. T. Kelly of Limerick opposed this amendment, as did also the Rev. Mr. Costello, on the grounds of its being contrary to the object of the meeting.

Mr. Kirby, in reply said, that he would not do anything that might be contrary to the nature and object of the meeting, and therefore that he would withdraw it.

The meeting shortly after separated in the greatest order and harmony.

It is remarkable that Mr. Clarke, Chairman of the above meeting, sent his tithes to the Incumbent on the morning of the meeting.

Messrs. Hawthorne, Babington, and Derepas were upset in a sail boat at Drogheda, on Friday, and drowned.

To the Editor of the Limerick Chronicle.

SABBATH BREAKING—ANTI-TITHE MEETINGS.

SIR,
There is a circumstance connected with many of the anti-tithe meetings, which seems to be overlooked; namely, their being held on Sunday.—Is not this alone sufficient to shew the complexion of men's wishes; and how can they expect success in their undertakings; when they thus wantonly desecrate God's holy day, and set his commandments at naught. I was at Church in Newcastle yesterday; when the congregation experienced considerable annoyance and interruption (although, I believe, not intentional) from the noise, the platform having been erected within a few yards of the Church. The Chair was taken by a Protestant Magistrate—I shall not attempt to describe the scene, to which that gentleman, lately a hot Brunswicker and Orangeman of the bluest water, thought fit to give the sanction of a

—The morning sounds of preparation, and the toil and travel both of man and beast, did not accord with the cheerful rest and devout retirement of a Christian Sabbath.—Indeed I believe, that the due observance of the Sabbath would be a fair gage, to measure the moral feeling of a professedly christian community: and I regret to say, that I can not apply that gage with satisfaction in this town; for latterly there has been a public Meat-market held on Sunday in the centre of the town, and close to the Church; and cattle are slaughtered there on the Sabbath Day—This has been represented to the authorities, but in vain. I do not know another small town, which presents so disgraceful an example. Indeed if consumers resolved not to purchase from those, who sold on the Sabbath; and if Employers made it a rule to pay their tradesman early on Saturday morning, Sunday would be more devoutly observed: "And let those" who boast themselves as lovers of their Country, recollect the infinite service, which the institution and observance of that day is to the civil community; softening and improving by its moral obligations the manners of the lower classes, refreshing by relaxation the health and spirits of all, who live in toil of mind or body, and reminding all men of their

DEATHS.

Monday, in Francis-street, after a few hours illness, of Cholera, Ellen, wife of Joseph Mullock, Esq., Ship-broker, a young lady most sincerely lamented. She was daughter of Mr. Tomlinson, of Dublin, and only two months married to her now disconsolate husband.

On George's-Quay, of cholera, Mrs. M'Mahon, wife of Mr. D. M'Mahon, tobacco manufacturer.

At John's Hill, Waterford, Robert Watson, Esq., one of the Society of Friends.

Of Cholera, on Sunday, Mr. John Peppard, of this City, Printer.

In Henry-street, Miss Cross.

In George's-street, on Monday, of Cholera, Terence, brother of Mr. Stephen O'Donnell, Glass and Chinaware merchant, a young gentleman much regretted.

Of Cholera, yesterday, after a few hours illness, Mr. James Welsh, of Bridge-street, Cabinet-maker.

In Patrick-street, after a lingering illness, Miss Margaret Carmody, confectioner.

Last night, at her son-in-law's house, Denmark-street, after a short illness which she bore with Christian piety, Mrs. Elizabeth Weir, aged 86, relict of Mr. David Weir.

In William-street, of Cholera, Mrs. Burke, wife of Mr. John Burke, draper and silk mercer. A young Lady whose death is the source of bitter affliction to her husband and family.

In Ballingarry, Mr. Denis M'Carthy, a young gentleman much regretted.

To the deep regret of her family, the only daughter of James Roe, of Roesboro', county Tipperary, Esq.

In Cork, Mr. Thomas M'Intosh, writing-master.

At Brideforth, county Cork, Mr. Michael Murphy.

In Bandon, Catherine, relict of Henry Baldwin, Esq.

In Patrick-street, Cork, Mr. Thomas O'Keefe.

In Waterford of Apoplexy, Mrs. Hewetson.

On Sunday night, of Cholera, at his house in Tipperary, Mr. Hellman (guager). He had been spending the evening before at Castletlake, near Cashel, and only returned home on Sunday morning, when he was attacked with the disorder which proved fatal in a few hours.

At Greenville, King's County, John Grier, Esq. formerly of the City of Dublin, in his 76th year.

On Tuesday, at an advanced age, at his residence, Jamestown, the Rev. Dr. M'Keon, Vicar-General of the Diocese of Ardagh.

At Ballinrobe, of cholera, George Ross Watson, Esq. Assistant-Surgeon 83d Regiment, aged 26 years.

In George's-street, Cork, Mrs. Jane Callaghan, sincerely and deservedly regretted.

In Dublin, Doctor Thomas Ferguson. In no instance has Cholera fallen upon a more worthy member of society.

In Dublin, at the advanced age of seventy-eight years, John Hutchings, commander of the Shannon steamer. He was an honest, upright man, and his loss will be felt by the company, to whom he was a most valuable and trustworthy servant.

At Violet-hill, county Armagh, Mrs. Blacker, wife of John Blacker, Esq., of Drogheda.

At Maryborough, of water on the brain, W. J. Walker, eldest son of Doctor Walker, of Forkhill, county Armagh.

At Ealing, Major John Fortnam, of the late 19th Lancers.

At Three Bridges, near Carrick-on-Suir, Ellen, wife of Piers O'Donnell, Esq.

At Litherland, aged 24 years, Lieutenant H. Brade, of the 21st Royal Scotch Fusiliers.

In Park-street, London, the Hon. W. Henry John Scott, second son of the Earl of Eldon.

At Southampton, Peter Bernard, Esq.

Of cholera, in Dorset-street, Dublin, Nathaniel Strickland, Esq.

In Upper Fitzwilliam-street, Dublin, Richard, the infant son of Edward Richards Colles, Esq.

At Cornahir, county Westmeath, aged 75, Mrs. Vignoles, relict of the late Rev. John Vignoles.

In Orchard-street, London, the Dowager Lady Frances Hales.

At Loughrea, of Cholera, Mr. Michael Keating, shop-keeper.

In Gort, of Cholera, Mr. Forde, a respectable shop-keeper.

At Macroom, in his 28th year, James C. Molony, Esq., Solicitor, son of James Molony, Esq., of Clonakilty.

TIMBER, DEALS, &c.

FIRST ARRIVAL FROM QUEBEC!

HARVEY BROTHERS, are now Landing from on Board the Priscilla, Heacock, master, a fresh supply QUEBEC PINE TIMBER, White and Yellow Deals and Staves, which with their present Superior Stock of MEMEL CROWN TIMBER, and DEALS, and other articles in the Building Line, they offer for Sale at moderate prices.

They shortly expect a farther extensive assortment of Wood Articles per the Harvy, Cicero, Fame, Alchymis, and Hannah from Quebec.

Harvey's Quay, July 11.

FEMALE EDUCATION.

MISS DE-ZOUCHE, grateful for the preference given to her mode of instruction for the last TEN YEARS in this City, begs to state, that she still adheres to her original

MISS HOGAN'S SEMINARY,

No. 53, George's Street, Limerick,

VACATION ended on SATURDAY, 7th, and Studies were resumed on MONDAY, 9th July. 1832.

MIDDLETON SCHOOL.

AT the Examination for Scholarships, held on the 7th and 8th ultimo, Messrs Butt, Gray and Woodroff obtained high places among the successful Candidates—am at the subsequent Examinations for Sizarships, Mr. Gerard the first place, on very distinguished answering; also the late Quarterly Examinations, Mr. W. Thompson was adjudged the Classical Certificate in his division of the Senior Freshmen Class—am at the Examination for Entrance into the University, held on the 5th inst. (Eleven Examiners) Master Wade obtained the first place among ninety competitors.

The above young Gentlemen were prepared for these trials respectively, at Middleton School.

N. B.—Vacation will terminate on the 1st of August.

Cards specifying terms, &c., to be had by application to Messrs. Edwards and Savage, Castle-street, Cork.

TO THE FREE ELECTORS OF THE COUNTY OF THE CITY OF LIMERICK.

Mansfield-street, London, June 26, 1832.

GENTLEMEN,

I feel it due no less to you, than to myself, to give you the earliest intimation that I shall tender to you the resignation of that honourable trust, which you confided to me with kindness, and which I have endeavoured faithfully to fulfil. The duties of my present office will render my residence London so constant, that I fear I may not be able to visit Ireland so frequently, or to make such a prolonged stay, you may consider it just to require from your representative and as I should desire to give to my country.

When our political connexion began, your independence had not been achieved. Supported by your public spirit, was enabled to assert, to vindicate, and to secure your rights. These invaluable blessings have been confirmed you by the Imperial Parliament. As long as your liberty were in a state of doubtful security, I fought your battle, and received in return for my exertions, proofs of favour and affection which can never be forgotten. The Reform Bill will not only give you a second representative, but in extending your rights, will leave you perfectly free and independent. I can therefore retire without prejudice to your interests.

During the fourteen eventful years which have elapsed since you first called me into public life, the Emancipation of my Roman Catholic countrymen—the Repeal of the Test and Corporation Laws—the removal of various oppressive taxes and restraints on trade—the establishment of a just and an impartial system of Education; and, lastly, the great measure of constitutional Reform have been discussed and brought successful in the Parliament of the United Kingdom. These important measures I have lent my humble but zealous aid—in all I have acted under the guidance and with co-operation of the British as well as of the Irish friends of Civil and Religious freedom. I trust I am warranted saying, with honest pride, that I am unconscious of having given one vote which had not in view the real and permanent interests of my country—I have endeavoured to act with that fearlessness and independence that should free your minds from all suspicion, and leave my conscience without reproach.

The improvements which have taken place in your Country and still more, the liberties we re-conquered, will, I trust, preserve among you some recollections of me. The friendships I have contracted and the favours I have received are and justify a sense of obligation on my part still more lasting. In whatever situations I may hereafter be placed that sense of obligation shall not be effaced. Should it be my good fortune to have a seat in the next Parliament, in performing my duties towards the whole of the United Empire shall never forget the ties which bind me to my native country.

And now, Gentlemen, I bid you a grateful and affectionate farewell. May your City be prosperous, and may you individually be happy. Moved, as you have ever been, by generous impulses of public spirit, but guiding those impulses by discretion and moderation, your conduct has afforded your country an example that an ardent desire to correct abuses and to advance the cause of constitutional improvement is perfectly compatible with a love of social order, a respect and reverence for the laws of the land. To you is enough to persevere—to others you may without arrogance, imitate.

I have the honor to be, Gentlemen,
With respect and gratitude,
T. SPRING RICE

TO THE ELECTORS OF LIMERICK.

GENTLEMEN,

AS the Irish Reform Bill is likely soon to restore a great City to the right of Two Representative General Election must shortly take place, to give the City the benefit of the measure. Mr. J. in such event I trust that the support of your kind Support and Int