

day night, Win. Maher, of Kilemawlan, atrocious circumstances, waylaid and bruised Erill, beyond Rathdowney. H. P. Delany, proceeded to hold an inquest on the body. He had to adjourn the inquisition, and to examine two of the principals impli- cated having fled the country.

have attacked several houses in the Barony of ... County, for the purpose of levying con- tributions, and the expenses of defending the prisoners at the Assizes.

Monday last, a poor tailor, named Maher, was found at a place called Erroll, in the Queen's County, his body was dreadfully lacerated, and his head cut from the trunk. The only cause which could account for so atrocious an outrage is, that the unfortunate man had beaten a notorious ruffian at ...; and it is suspected that his faction was the method of revenging the disgrace.

Mellafont was tried before Baron Pennefather, on Monday, charged with stealing bank notes and a sum of nearly £70, from Joseph Scannell, a barrister, in whose family she was very in- volved. Mellafont was the widow of a very respectable gentleman, Hungerford, in the West of the county. She was extracted, in Mr. Scannell's absence, as a secretary in his bed-room, but there was no evidence against the above lady, then an inmate of his house, who committed the theft. The jury, under those circumstances, acquitted Mrs. Mellafont. Next day was tried a woman, in which Mrs. Mellafont claimed £100, and £50 deposited by her with Mr. ... for plaintiff, £23.
