the harvest of 1826 would have been payable towards the close of that year. I conceived, as well as many others of the Clergy in Ireland, that the Composition Act in this respect merely altered the periods of paymeent, making the first half of the income of that harvest recoverable in Nov. 1826, and the remaining half in May, 1827, and so on for each succeeding year.

When called on by Government for a return of arrears, I included the May gale of 1832, under the full conviction that it was the balance due to me of my income to Nov. 1831 inclusive.

This statement will I trust convince any unprejudiced reader of the Limerick Post how foreign it was from my intention to proceed for the recovery of sums already received by me or by my collector, whose character also the writer of the article in question has attempted to impeach. He is a man who, though in humble life, can bid defiance to any calumnies pronounced against him. The parishioners have, from him as well as me, got credit for all monies received, and I pledge myself that the amount of the sums returned in my schedule to Government were then, and still remain, due and unpaid.

I am, Sir, your obedient Servant,
EDWARD HERBERT, Vicar of Uiloe.

April 2, 1833.

CASE OF URGENT DISTRESS.

The attention of the charitable and humane is earnestly requested, and their assistance solicited on behalf of the following melancholy case of affliction:—

Thomas Gugon has for several years filled a respectable situation in London—but having fallen into a bad state of health, obtained leave of absence for a time, in the hope that a visit to his native city might be of benefit to him. He accordingly came to Limerick with his wife and seven children, at the period of the first appearance of the cholera in this city. Shortly after his arrival, his wife and three children were seized with this awful malady, of which one of the children died. In consequence of this, his stay in this city was necessarily protracted, until he had spent all the money which he possessed, which would otherwise have been sufficient to have defrayed the expenses of himself and family back to his employment. They are now reduced to a state of the deepest poverty, having neither clothes nor means of subsistence, except by the charity of a few individuals who have been made acquainted with the circumstances of the case.

The object of the present appeal is to procure means by the contribution of the benevolent, to enable this poor man and his family to return to England, where he doubts not, he will be able to find employment again.

Contributions for this purpose will be thankfully received by the Rev. John Duddell, Rev. Dr. Townley, Mr. Sutherland, and Mr. Joseph Baylee.
