

EARL OF CLARE—Annual Harvest-Home Dinner at Mount Shannon.—A most sumptuous feast was given on Saturday last to his lordship's numerous tradesmen, labourers, and their wives, the company sat down to dinner at half-past three, and retired at 10 o'clock, with hearts full of gratitude to their noble provider. His Lordship's health—the poor man's benefactor—and safe return to Mount Shannon was drank in a full bumper, with the greatest joy and rounds of acclamation. Dancing commenced after dinner, and words cannot describe the enjoyment of the company; to the managers merit is due in the arrangement of the dinner, regularity and attention to fulfill the wish of his lordship.

CAPTAIN OWEN'S VOYAGES.—"Africa may be said to possess a stronger attraction than most other regions of the globe, from its having been less explored; and consequently, affording a more fertile and extensive source of novelty for the gratification of curiosity and adventure. Great as the progress has been in our day in the development of geographical information relative to this great Continent, consequent on the exertions and zeal of Horneiman, Park, Oadney, Deuliam, Clapperton, Laing, and many other travellers, not forgetting the modest, unpretending Lander, much still remains to be done to complete the geography even of Northern Africa; and as to the southern part of this continent, it continues to exhibit almost a blank on our maps. A survey of its eastern coast was the main object of the present expedition; and the united labours of the surviving officers of the little squadron are detailed in these volumes. The results are highly important."—Quarterly Review.

ADVERTISEMENT.

To the Editor of the Limerick Chronicle.

SIR—Through the medium of your journal, I beg to acquaint the Noblemen and Gentlemen of Limerick and its vicinity, that I have opened the Establishment, 4, Nassau-street, Dublin, in the Drapery and Tailoring, in both of which branches I am enabled confidently to assert, that I am not inferior to any house of the trade in Dublin or London. My Winter Stock comprises every fashionable article that the first manufacturers in the West of England and London can produce. Having an established correspondent in London, I have the earliest intimation of every new article and change of fashion, which are supplied to me the moment they appear. I beg to solicit the inspection of the numerous Gentlemen of Limerick, who visit Dublin, to my stock; and to assure those who may honor me with their commands, that neither attention or proper execution of their orders, shall be omitted by me, to ensure their advantage, and the favour of future and permanent support.

GEORGE ATKINSON,
Draper and Tailor, 4, Nassau-street, Dublin,
Late of Wardle & Owen, Dame-street.
