At St. George's Church, Hanover-square, the late Mrs. Jane, relict of the Rev. George Waddington, late Rector of Northwold, Norfolk, and daughter of the late James Cocks, Esq. uncle to his Lordship, by Martha, daughter of the late Admiral Watson, and sister of Sir Charles Watson, Bart.

At St. George's, Hanover-square, Captain Ricketts, R.N. eldest son of Sir Richard T. Ricketts, Bart. D.C.L. of the Elms, Gloucestershire, to Henrietta, daughter of Colonel Tempest, of Tong Hall, Yorkshire.

At Trinity Church, Marylebone, the Rev. Frederick T. W. C. FitzRoy, A.M. Rector of Grafton Regis, Northampton, youngest son of Lieut.-Gen. the Hon. Wm FitzRoy, to Emilia L'Estrange, eldest daughter of the late Henry Styleman, of Snettisham, Norfolk, Esq.

At Edmonston Church, near London, John Gerrard, Esq. of the 45th Regiment of Native Infantry, Madras Establishment, to Louisa, daughter of the late Jas. Wilson, Esq. of Sneaton-Castle, Whitby.

Bertram Newton Ogle, Esq. Captain H.M. 4th Light Dragoons, to Maria Jane, eldest daughter of George Simpson, Esq. of Ogle, in the county of Angus.

DEATHS.

At Portsea, on the 24th ult. Mary Adelaid, second daughter of Captain Lavers, of the 91st Regiment, in her 14th year, of a rapid consumption, with which she had been attacked whilst at school at Droxford, and from whence she had been removed to Portsea, on her way to this country by her affectionate mother, who had a short time previously gone over to England for that purpose from Mallow.

At Newcastle, in this County, after a few days' illness, Mary, relict of the late John Dowling, Esq. In her the poor of Newcastle have lost one of their best benefactors.

On the 31st ult. at Ennis, of a spotted and brain fever, the Rev. D. Barnett. As a Minister of the Gospel, under the Irish Evangelical Society, he was most assiduous in making known the glad tidings of Salvation through faith in the Lord Jesus Christ, and his Journal for the past Quarter shews how indefatigable he was in the important work which engrossed all his time and thoughts. During the month of April and former part of May (about seven weeks altogether, immediately preceding his last illness), he had preached no fewer than 64 times! He was ever willing to impart to the necessitous, though so limited were his means, that the Scripture precept seemed to be exemplified in him—"Let him that hath two coats impart to him that hath none." A disconsolate widow and child are by his death deprived of all earthly support.

At Garrihees, county Kerry, John Fitzgerald, Esq.

At Kilcreest, county Galway, Edmund O'Shaughnessy, Esq.

Of a tedious illness, Richard Gillman Hawkes, Esq. Queen-st. Cork. The Very Rev. William O'Brien, P.P. of Doneraile, aged 73. His funeral was attended by Lord Doneraile, and the Protestant Clergy of the Parish.

Sidney Robert, fourth son of Major Lawrence Dundas, of Leeson-street, Dublin.

In her 26th year, Annabella, only surviving daughter of the late Patrick Hamilton, Esq. of Dublin.

In Dungannon, Mrs. Margaret Clement, aged 87 years, niece to the late Dr. William Clement, Vice Provost, Trinity College, Dublin.

At Castlemartyr, Sarah Anne, wife of Henry Kenagh, Esq.

At Rasharkin, James Russell, Esq. son of the late Rev. R. Russell, Rector of the parish of Dunaghy.

At the Bath Hotel, Dover-street, London, John Comyn, Esq. Woodstock, county Galway. He dined with his sister in Chester-street, Grosvenor-square, and returning in his cab between ten and eleven o'clock, was unfortunately thrown out, which caused the rupture of a blood-vessel.

In King William-street, West Strand, London, the wife of the Rev. David Prothero. Vicar of Llandilo, Carmarthenshire.

At Weymouth, Lieut.-Colonel Drewe, aged 54.

P. D. Sherston, Esq. of Wells, Lieut.-Colonel 2d Somerset Militia. In Plymouth, Sergeant Thomas Osborn, South Devon Militia.
