is at length recovered from the effects of the murder is attack made upon him by hired assassins. On Christmas day, on his way to Emily, he was met by a vast assemblage of the neighbouring country people, and by his own numerous tenants, who, taking the horses from his carriage, drew him into the village, where bonfires, &c. were prepared to welcome him. It is due to the peasantry to state the good feeling evinced by them towards Mr. Ryan, who is well known as a most indulgent landlord, never having distrained or dispossessed a tenant, and who besides affords extensive employment to the poor.

Yesterday morning the body of a labouring man of the name of Clanchy, from the Red-gate, in the North Liberties, was taken out of the river near Thomond Bridge, into which, in a fit of desperation, he had flung himself on Christmas eve.
He was only married before last Advent. The Mayor held an inquest upon the remains yesterday at the Exchange, when a woman swore she saw Clanchy walk deliberately into the river about 9 or 10 o'clock at night at Thomond-gate slip, after he had been drinking with his cousin of the same name at a public house in that neighbourhood, as appeared in evidence—Verdict: that Patrick Clanchy drowned himself in a state of temporary mental derangement.

Friday evening last, a woman named Honora M'Namara, in comfortable circumstances, at Corbally, near this City, died suddenly. It appeared on the evidence of a professional Gentleman that her death was caused by apoplexy.

A poor woman named Johanna Moylan was found drowned at the new embankment, North-side of the Pool, on Monday morning. She was seen alive the day before in the Englishtown. There is no proof that her death was accidental or otherwise.

Saturday last, Patrick Hogan, a young country lad, was killed upon the spot at Greenhills, in the South Liberties of this City, by the accidental discharge of a fowling-piece, the contents of which entering his breast, passed out thro' his back, of which wound the unhappy victim expired in a few minutes. He was in the act of assisting a young gentleman from town over a high hedge in pursuit of game, when the latter in ascending handed up the gun to his guide, but at that instant, by some unforeseen accident, the charge exploded, and the effect was mortal. It would be idle to describe the feelings of terror and dismay which seized hold of the unhappy yet innocent cause of this fatality. The Mayor held an inquest on Sunday—Verdict: Accidental Death.

Mr. O'Grady, of Hartstongue-street, acknowledges Five Pounds from the Right Hon. Earl Dunraven, per Rev.
Wyndham Fitzgerald, which Mr. O'Grady has handed over to the Steward of the Mendicity as directed.

The letter of CIVIS upon the subject of fires in St.
Michael's Parish, containing some valuable suggestions, shall appear in our next.
