At Carrick-on-Suir, Mr. John Bourke.

In the prime of life, on the 22d ult. at his residence, Redhill, county Cavan, Mr. William Howe, for nearly seven years an active and efficient member of the Police of this City. Unobtrusive in his habits, loyal in his principles, sincere and disinterested in his attachments, he endeared himself to all who knew him. Supported by that arm which wrought out a mighty Salvation for him, he departed with a well-founded hope, that when Christ, who is his righteousness, shall appear, he also shall appear with him in glory. His surviving relatives, therefore, do not "sorrow as men without hope," but bow in humble resignation to him "whose ways are unsearchable," — knowing that he hath entered on a better and more enduring inheritance, "where sorrow and sighing cannot enter and every tear is wiped away."

Mrs. Bond, relict of the late William Bond, Esq. of Bond's Hill, near Derry.

In Carlow, Mrs. Joshua Haughton, member of the Society of Friends.

At Coole House, near Knocklofty, William Vowell, Esq. twenty-four years Governor of Clonmel Gaol.
