

and if to this be added the unspeakable importance of sound Scriptural instruction—without which the mind is as little fitted for the duties and privileges of immortal beings, as the wretched ruins in Patrick-street are for the ordinary purposes of shelter, of comfort, or of trade. How often do we gratify our curiosity and love of amusement at any cost or hazard—how often do we strain every faculty and power to gratify our taste—how frequently have we made many sacrifices to please ourselves under the equivocal condition of giving a portion of the profits to charity. Shall we then hesitate to gratify all the better feelings of our nature, without any drawback, by at once enjoying a delightful intellectual treat—testifying our zeal for sterling principles in an age which is not remarkable for steadfast adherence to integrity of purpose—and receiving, thro' the Divine blessing, such positive and lasting benefits for ourselves, as shall ever make us bless the day when the Hon. and Rev. Ludlow Tonson made his appearance amongst us, as the champion of Scriptural Education.—Believe me yours, &c, &c. V. B.
