DEATHS.

Yesterday morning, in Mary-street, at the advanced age of 91 years, P. O'Kelly, Esq. Author of "Killarney," and other Poems.

On Sunday morning, at Thomond-gate, Mr. Zachary Myles.
Suddenly, at his house, Batchelor's-walk, Dublin, on Saturday, James Boswell, Esq. brother-in-law to Joseph K. Carey, Esq. M.D.
of this city.

Sunday last, at Courtbrack, John Lynch, Esq. grocer and wine merchant, a young gentleman of strict integrity and correct department.

In Upper William-street, Mr. David Connell, gardener.
At Lower Summer-Hill, Dublin, Mr. Christopher Kinlan, a young man deservedly and sincerely regretted by all who knew him.

In Hardwick-street, Dublin, Eliza Monimia, wife of James A.
M'Manus, Esq. and only daughter of the late Stephen Martin, of Spiddle House, Galway, Esq.

and of James Fynn, Esq. merchant of Galway.

On Friday, in William-street, Marianne, the beloved wife of Mr. William Caulfield,—a Lady whose amiable disposition and unvarying suavity of manners endeared to all who knew her. To a fond husband, a young family, and a numerous circle of sorrowing friends, the only abiding consolation is, that she died full of the hopes and fortified by the aids of true and pure religion.

On Monday, at Woodpark, Scarriff, of the prevailing influenza, Jessie, youngest daughter of Philip Reade, Esq.

At Athlone, on the 15th instant, William, only son of P. Callaghan, Esq. Pro-Collector of Excise. Deceased was a fine interesting child, and the circumstances attending his death are of the most melancholy nature, having met with an accident from scalding water, which speedily terminated his existence. The feelings of his truly afflicted parents can more easily be imagined than expressed.

At Littleton, Stillorgan, Doctor Wilson.
Edmund Haughton, Esq. merchant of Dublin.

At Monk-place, Phibsborough, Farrell M'Dermott, Esq. formerly of Abbey-street, Dublin.

In Waterford, Captain John Green, late of the brig Cornwallis.
