ROBBERY.—Mr. William St. Lawrence, in this City, was returning in a Thursday, from the County Tipperary, rents, when between Nenagh and about five o'clock in the afternoon, suddenly sprung out upon the and the horse's head. These fellows had their faces blackened. One of pulled the rein, while another knocked the scap, and held him to the ground by force upon the man's breast. Two ruffians pointed their pistols at Mr. St. Lawrence, and demanded his money immediately, and shot him on the spot. That gentleman refused to resist this outrage, was obliged to pay a sum of £150, which he had collected in that county, after which the party allowed him his journey, but with dreadful threats to give notice of their proceedings. However, Mr. St. Lawrence called the police authorities of the robbery, and Mr. Croker lost no time in pursuit, when they fortunately arrested a man of the name Wardick, whom Mr. St. Lawrence named one of the very tenants who had paid the rent this very week! He is fully

DEATHS.

Wednesday last, at Bertie-house, Leamington, after a short illness, Colonel George O'Halloran, late 4th or King's Own Regt., no less distinguished in his career as a brave and enterprising officer, than as a highly honourable and courteous gentleman. He served originally in the 54th, under the gallant Sir Ralph Abercrombie, in Egypt, and was wounded at the battle of Alexandria—subsequently with equal distinction throughout the Peninsular war, under the lamented Sir John Moore, and the illustrious Wellington, having been again wounded at Corunna, and Salamanca, in which actions the 4th bore a foremost part. The death of this much esteemed veteran, will be much regretted by his old companions in arms, and a numerous circle of friends—to his family in this city it is the source of deep and lasting affliction.
