the verdict of a jury, he meant the information sworn to by one of the witnesses examined this day, Bridget Minogue daughter of the deceased, in which she deposed to having seen a boy named Quinn, strike her father with a stone, and leap on his body, and she also swore that she saw some of the other prisoners on that occasion. Now contrasting the information with her testimony on the trial, when she positively swore that she did not see any of the prisoners strike her father, or see him struck at all, he should say it was a matter of surprise to him, and he believed to every person that heard her.
The prisoners were then discharged.
In the next case thirty one persons were indicted for a riot and assault, arising out of the former case, four of whom were found guilty belonging to the other party in the preceding case, namely, John Hickey, Michael Sullivan, David and Martin Williams. Bernard Keily was charged with stealing a sheep from Patrick Welsh.—Guilty.
Peter Doogan, for passing a bad half-crown on James Kelly, at Ennis.—Not Guilty.
John Fallon and Catherine Fallon, alias M. Mahon, were indicted for having passed a base-half-crown on Edmund Ryan, at the fair Enagh O'Flinn, on the 31st of July last.
John Shaw, Head-Constable of Police, proved that he arrested the prisoner John Fallon, in the fair, and took a bad half-crown out of his hand; he endeavoured to get away from witness. Thomas Soden, swore that he arrested the female prisoner and found just at her feet a bad half crown. The Jury found John Fallon guilty, and acquitted Catherine Fallon.
Charles Fitzsimons, was indicted for stealing a cow from Thomas Quinn, at Slievenore.—Not Guilty.
James Conway and Patrick Pine, brothers-in-law, charged with stealing two heifers, and a mare, the property of Thomas Pine, father of the second prisoner, were acquitted.
Patrick Cullinan was found guilty of stealing a pig from John Halloran.
The Court then adjourned to 9 o'clock on Friday morning.
Yesterday (Friday) two sisters (Rowan and Guthrie) were tried for the murder of their husbands, by administering poison. They were acquitted at a late hour last night. A man named Patrick O'Brien was tried for the barbarous murder of a man of the name of Corey, returning from Miltoin Petty Sessions, but acquitted on account of the prevarication of the witnesses for the prosecution, though no doubt whatever is entertained of his guilt. Michael Tuohy, charged with the murder of Mr. Samuel Bindon's driver, has postponed his trial to next Assizes.
In the Record Court yesterday, before Mr. Sergeant Greene, a verdict for £136 and costs was found against the Rev. Mr. Comyn, P.P. of Kilkree, for work done at the new Chapel there, by a builder of the name of M'Inerney. In Cunningham v. Studdert, an action of ejectment, there was a verdict for defendant.
Jeremiah Considine, murder of James O'Neill.—Guilty of manslaughter.
Judith Charters and Eliza M'Teighe, burglary and robbery in the house of Michael Deloughery. Guilty.
Michael Garvey, holding rather a respectable station in life, is this day on his trial at Ennis, before Baron Richards, for having violated the person of a young woman of the name of Worrall, at Killaloe.
The presentment for enlarging and improving Ennis gaol, was only carried by the casting vote of the foreman of the Grand Jury, Sir Lucius O'Brien. There is only one proposal for the work in the hands of the Secretary.
PETTY SESSIONS COURT—YESTERDAY.
The Mayor, Alderman Morony, Michael Gavin, Esq., and Captain Kane, Magistrates presiding.
John Kennedy, uttering base coin, was remanded; informations were ordered against George Madigan, and John Griffin, for stealing ropes from a turf boat at Arthur's quay; Timothy Wrenn, violent assault on Thomas Magner, by striking him with a stone on the head, was remanded; John M'Namara was fined 10s. for assault on Denis Kerby; informations were ordered against John Molony, for stealing furniture from Mr. Bernard, cap manufacturer, Charlotte's-quay; James Corbett was fined £2, or two months' imprisonment, for assault with a stone, on John Reynolds, watch-house keeper of St. Michael's parish.
JOHN REYNOLDS v. JOHN RALEIGH.
The Mayor—The summons against Mr. Raleigh is at the instance of John Reynolds, of St. Michael's watch-house, for being drunk and disorderly; he is also charged with an assault.
John Reynolds was then sworn, and repeated the evidence which appeared in a former number, to the effect that Raleigh collared him, dragged him by the breast, knocked him down, and struck him severely, without any provocation.
Mr. Raleigh to Reynolds—Did I strike you, upon your oath?
Reynolds—Upon my oath you did.
Mr. Raleigh—Upon my oath it is false; and if the Reporters of the Press are in attendance, I hope they will attend to what I am going to say. If I am allowed to speak, I'll tell all.
The Mayor—Certainly you can speak.
Mr. Raleigh—Allow me to preface the case. I sent some of the Magistrates of this county off the Bench before, and I'll soon send more. I imagined bigotry would prevail over good taste.
Mr. Morony—I object to your proceeding in this way. We will not allow you to use the word bigotry, which has nothing at all to do with the case.
Captain Kane to Raleigh—You are brought up here for an assault.
Raleigh to Alderman Morony—I know you; and I know ye are all a bloody set! (Amazement.)
Alderman Morony—This is most unbecoming and insulting language, and should not be sanctioned in this Court.
Raleigh—When I was here the last day, I saw ye wait for two hours for the bell man, who was concerned in a case; and when I went away and that this case was called, ye issued a warrant against me, a respectable citizen, and sent two policemen to my house to execute it. But I don't wonder at that, as I am sure ye would send for the hangman for me, if it was in ye're power, ye—(lowering his voice to a ferocious growl, intelligible only for its bull-dog sound of intimidation.)
The Mayor and Magistrates remonstrated against such gross and unheard of contempt of Court.
Raleigh—Oh, there is a bloody spirit existing amongst ye towards me!—(cries of shame.)
The Mayor again entreated of the speaker not to use such language, when nothing had occurred to provoke it.
Raleigh—It was bad taste of ye, I say, to issue a warrant against me.
Mr. Gavin—As you are talking about bad taste in issuing a warrant, I can tell you that the warrant was brought to me last night, and I signed it, and I would do so again if it was requisite.
Captain Kane—So would I, and so ought every Magistrate, under the circumstances.

would pay me. (laughter.)
Raleigh in continuation said when he called O'Grady in, he asked why it was complaints should have been made to the Priest, about such a small trifle, and that O'Grady gave him some impudence, and struck him. He said that O'Grady broke his glass door, and that he had him summoned for doing so, as well as for an assault. Raleigh added that he owed the money to O'Grady's brother, for whiskey, which he forced him to take, urging that it was good, and (said Raleigh) "so it was, and I and my friends drank it, as I never drink alone." He declared he did not strike O'Grady with the searing iron, but only gave him a tip with the handle of it.
Mr. Gavin to Raleigh—Did he bleed?
Raleigh—He did; I never struck a man yet that he didn't bleed; and many a man I struck!!
O'Grady—I believe you never struck a man you were afraid of but me.
Raleigh—Who is your mother?
O'Grady—I'll tell you who your grandmother was.
Raleigh—This fellow is a bastard! (cries of shame.)
Two women were examined for Raleigh, who both swore that he did not strike O'Grady, but only gave him a slight tip of the handle of the searing iron.
Raleigh—A greater outrage was never committed than upon me by that perjured ruffian; that villain; that bastard!!!
The Mayor—Mr. Raleigh, we cannot sanction this; you must be more respectful in this Court, or else we shall commit you.
Raleigh—Shure ye can do what ye like with me. The Mayor—I hope we will do justice at all times.
O'Grady—I expect ye will do me justice, your Worship.
Raleigh to O'Grady—I'm sorry I didn't knock your brains out!
Mr. Gavin—Is this case closed on both sides?
Raleigh—It is not closed on my side, for I have a cross case against him.
Mr. Gavin—I suppose the same evidence is to be repeated.
Raleigh—There is more, for I will swear that he was the fellow that struck me, and damaged my house.
Raleigh was sworn, and repeated his assertion that O'Grady first struck him. He said, that what the women who were examined on his behalf together with O'Grady had sworn, was false (cries of oh! oh!) as he never gave Grady a tip at all! It was false, upon his honor!!
The Mayor after consulting with the other Magistrates, announced that it was the unanimous decision of the Bench that Mr. Raleigh should be fined £1, or a month's imprisonment.
Raleigh—By G—, I'll go to gaol with pleasure—that is what I call justice—I was there before for juking a fellow! I sent Boston Sullivan and Darby Joke to the right-about before; and (to the Bench) I'll bring ye to the right-about for false imprisonment.
The prisoner was then removed to the adjoining room, to be kept in custody until he paid the fine.
In a few minutes he again came forward, and told the Bench he would appeal against their decision, and take the Recorder's opinion on the affair.
The Mayor—In this case you cannot appeal.
Raleigh—Why, how do you prove that? I'll let you see I can according to law.
Captain Kane—Shew the law by which you can appeal.
Raleigh—Shew it to you—'tis ye're business to have it, and I demand it.
The Magistrates desired the Act of Parliament to be produced.
The Mayor said he believed Mr. Raleigh had not perfected his recognizance in the case of Mr. Fitzgerald, for assault.
Mr. Raleigh—and that was more of the justice. I called at Mr. Costello's office to do so, and he wasn't to be found there.
Mr. Costello here returned with the Act of Parliament, and having been informed of what Raleigh had said, told the Bench, that out of courtesy to Mr. Raleigh he had called for the purpose at his house six or seven times, in order not to put him to any inconvenience, and he was not to be seen. He therefore considered Mr. Raleigh ought not to throw the blame on him, as there was always a clerk in attendance at his office when he was absent.
Raleigh then read the act, and said he appealed from Patrick's well sessions against the decision of Lord Clarina, and he expected he would defeat him.
Ryan, the watchman, to receive whose evidence the magistrates withheld their decision in the case of Reynolds against Raleigh, next came forward, but with much reluctance, to detail anything to implicate the accused. He would not swear that he saw Reynolds struck by Raleigh, but that he saw him give him a push only.
Mr. Gavin said he would not be inclined to receive such evidence, as it was manifest the watchman was not disposed to give it fairly.
In this case a like order was made, that Raleigh should be fined £1, or a month's imprisonment.
Raleigh—I'll appeal to that also.
Raleigh withdrew from the table, and again returned to answer another summons.
LAWRENCE EGAN v. JOHN RALEIGH.
The Mayor said they had decided the last day that Mr. Raleigh would pay £5, or a warrant to issue for wages due to Egan. Egan complained that Raleigh had given him only 1s. and refused to pay the remainder.
Raleigh—I did, and refuse to pay it now, for you broke my things, and you robbed me of 46l. worth, and I'll have you summoned for larceny against next Court day.
Alderman Morony—That will be heard in due time. You must pay the remainder of the 5l.
The Magistrates directed that Egan should be paid the balance of £5 or a warrant to issue.
Raleigh was again brought forward, and was much excited.
The Mayor said that the very disrespectful and menacing conduct he had displayed during the day, called for the disapprobation of the entire Bench, and that he ought to have been committed for such gross contempt of the Court, as well as for his ungentlemanlike and insulting language during the day.
Raleigh—I'd like to see ye do it.
Captain Kane—I for one would do it, for such language I never heard before any Bench. It could not be expected from the most ignorant or illiterate man.
Raleigh to Captain Keane—All belonging to my family were known to be respectable, when you were drumming.
The offender was immediately removed by the police, and conveyed to prison, declaring that he would not pay any of the fines.
The Marble Ware-room, Bedford-Row, James Harvey and Co. Agents, advertised for the last few days, presents the most superior collection of the native and foreign chimney pieces, bust columns, pier table slabs, wash stands, &c. ever seen in this city. A visit will afford the highest gratification.

Important to the Public. RADICAL CURE FOR CORNS,
Without Cutting, or the least Pain.
DR. J. EISENBERGH, from Vienna, has the honour to announce to the Nobility, Gentry, and inhabitants of Limerick and its vicinity, that he understands the TOTAL ERADICATION OF CORNS, BUNIONS, NAILS, and every hard or soft substance on or between the toes, without cutting, by means of an Elixir of his own composition. The operation is performed in the short space of two minutes, without the least pain, and the patient may resume his dress and occupation, with the satisfaction of carrying the corn or root in his hand. Dr. E. is in possession of a great number of flattering testimonials granted to him in foreign parts, and by distinguished physicians and surgeons. He has also received several testimonials from respectable gentlemen in Sheffield, Leeds, Bristol, Bath, and other cities in England, whom he has perfectly cured, and which can be seen at his residence.
Dr. EISENBERGH engages if any person suffers pain in extracting his corn, to return the fee. Dr. E. respectfully informs the Ladies and Gentlemen of Limerick, and the public generally, that Corns once eradicated by him never grow again, as usually when operated upon by unskilful practitioners.
The Doctor will give attendance daily, from ten to one in the morning, and from two until seven in the evening, at his residence.
Dr. EISENBERGH begs to announce to the Ladies and Gentlemen of Limerick and its vicinity, that owing to numerous engagements in London, an early application to him is desirable. Dr. E. would also give this public advice to Ladies and Gentlemen labouring under corns, that on no account should they be cut; J. E. having had several cases where by being cut in the hopes of relief, they have really become more troublesome and difficult of extraction. All letters post-paid will be instantly attended to.
18, PATRICK-STREET, ONE DOOR OFF DENMARK-STREET.
ANOTHER TESTIMONIAL.
Dr. Eisenberg has extracted three corns from my foot which sometimes caused me great pain, and he removed them without giving the slightest pain or uneasiness.
C. DELMEGE.
Castle-Park, Limerick, Feb. 25.
